RESULTS ... NOT PROMISES

It's that simple, And that important!

It is truly an honor to serve as Mayor for the City of El Cajon. Thank you for the opportunity to share with you recent accomplishments and what we look forward to here in our City. Starting with the safety of our City in the area of emergency services...

The El Cajon Fire Department management staff is now Heartland Fire and Rescue. As of January 1, 2010, the Cities of El Cajon, La Mesa and Lemon Grove entered into a joint exercise of powers agreement (JPA) for management and delivery of fire protection and emergency medical services-this will save a combined $560,000 annually.

The San Diego County Taxpayers Association (SDCTA) gave top honors to the Heartland Fire & Rescue JPA with the "Grand Golden Watchdog" award- this award highlights smart, sensible practices in taxpayer-funded programs.

F.B.I. Statistics show that the City of El Cajon is among the top cities in crime rate reductions in the County of San Diego for 2009.

Overall Crime is DOWN 21 PERCENT.

Violent Crime is DOWN 13 PERCENT.

Property Crime is DOWN 23 PERCENT.

Domestic Crime is DOWN 24 PERCENT.

The downtown area has gone through a major face-lift- a distinctive City of El Cajon sign, new sidewalks, seating, streetlights and "way finding" signs. New businesses have arrived and more are coming!

We just completed a major renovation of the downtown Prescott Promenade. The refurbished park features a covered amphitheater area, plenty of informal seating, and walkways designed for pedestrians as well as classic cars, vendor booths or a host of other activities. We'll be able to host larger events in the downtown area.

El Cajon is one of the most successful cities in San Diego County regarding recycling and resource recovery. It is recognized as the only "Zero Waste City" in San Diego County and only one of a few in the State of California. Our Solid Waste Vehicles are operated by clean natural gas from a landfill.

The City of El Cajon is recognized by the Federal Government as a "Tree City USA" because of our efforts in promoting the value and benefits of tree planting. This "Urban Forest" maintains a natural environment for all our residents, now and in the future.

The City is looking forward to the new animal shelter being built next year with "Prop J" money for our four legged residents. The shelter has a "no kill policy"- every pet that can be saved will be saved. Each animal is checked, treated if necessary and micro chipped by a veterinarian before being placed for adoption.

Despite these challenging times, the City of El Cajon has a lot to be proud of, with some exciting projects ahead...

New Tagger Hotline nets three just hours following news conference

Hours after the announcement of the new El Cajon Tagger Tip Line, an El Cajon resident saw a group of individuals using spray paint to vandalize the rear of a business. The reporting party kept watching the suspects as he called the police department. He directed officers to the location of the vandals and they were arrested. Three juveniles were taken into custody for this incident.

The City of El Cajon has seen an increase in graffiti over the last several months. During the last year, there have been approximately 4,000 incidents of graffiti reported to the City of El Cajon's graffiti removal hotline. This is an approximate 45 percent increase from the previous year. In an effort to reduce graffiti in El Cajon, the City of El Cajon, in partnership with the El Cajon Community Development Corporation and Crime Stoppers, unveiled the El Cajon Tagger Tip Line this week. As was done in this case, if people see a crime in progress, they should immediately contact the police department and direct officers to the location of the offenders. This was an excellent example of the important role community members play in helping to combat crime in their neighborhoods. People with information regarding the identity of graffiti vandals can reach the El Cajon Tagger Tip Line from the El Cajon Police Department website at www.elcajonpolice.org, or the Community Development Corporation website at www.downtownelcajon.com. Tipsters can also go directly to Crime Stoppers website at www.sdcrimestoppers.com/ectaggetipline.html, or call Crime Stoppers at (888) 580-8477. Anyone with information that leads to an arrest could receive up to a $2,000.00 reward and remain anonymous.

Mission Federal opens first-ever Credit Union at Junior Achievement BizTown

Calling all fifth graders! Mission Federal Credit Union today announced the opening of the first-ever credit union at San Diego's Junior Achievement BizTown. The Mission Federal BizTown Shop will serve more than 12,000 participating fifth-grade students each year, through financial education and real-world business experiences.

"This ideal matchup pairs the financial education missions of both Mission Federal and Junior Achievement into one powerful experiential learning environment for students," said Tricia Link, vice president of community relations and external affairs, Mission Federal Credit Union.

JA BizTown is a 10,000 square foot mini-version of the City of San Diego, in which kids discover how free enterprise really works. Its newest Mission Fed student shop will be joining 18 other life-size local businesses, the San Diego Foundation, and City Hall. Other community partners include such companies as Sony, Clear Channel, NBC, and Cox.

Each year, 12,000 fifth grade students complete a four-to-six week in-class business curriculum, including economics, good citizenship and money management, and then take to the streets of BizTown for a full-day to put what they've learned into action. Students apply for jobs and work at the area businesses, and also run for elected offices. Students must develop their business operating budget, apply for business loans, create advertising and refine their marketing strategies in the classroom in preparation for their JA BizTown visit. Students also practice being consumers in the economy and are responsible for managing their personal checking and savings accounts.

"JA BizTown affords these lucky students the unique opportunity to learn hands-on business skills, team work, leadership, money management, and corporate citizenship," continued Link. "BizTown is also an ideal venue to teach students early on about the not-for-profit credit union difference."

JA is a well-respected worldwide non-profit dedicated to providing in-class financial literacy curriculum to K-12 students in cities throughout the U.S. and world.

Mission Federal Credit Union's CEO Debra Schwartz recently joined the local JA Board of Directors.

JA is also Mission Fed's non-profit partner on the award-winning "I'm Thankful for my Teacher" student post card teacher recognition campaign that garnered JA a $25,000 grant and top-prize as the Met Life Entrepreneurial Spirit Best Practice Award Winner in 2009.

A special El Cajon Community Forum

Local athlete doesn't let wheelchair slow him down

Mike Robbins-Wade is a 15-year old who was born with spina bifida. Due to paralysis he uses a wheelchair for mobility, but that doesn't stop him from playing sports. Mike attended his first Junior Wheelchair Sports Camp at age five and has been going strong ever since. Thanks to the San Diego Adaptive Sports Foundation (SDASF) Mike attends this great camp every summer and plays sports year-round with the program. This year, Wheelchair Sports Camp offered 16 different sports and activities for young athletes to participate in, to discover new talents and have a lot of fun.

Now a sophomore at Granite Hills High School, Mike has been playing with SDASF's San Diego Hammer since he was in second grade. In basketball he has moved through the ranks from Prep to Junior Varsity to Varsity II. Mike has traveled with his team to tournaments in Atlanta, Denver, Phoenix, Berkeley, and Vancouver, WA. Mike loves all manner of adaptive sports, his favorites being basketball, archery, surfing, skiing, and handcycling. Along with many of his teammates, Mike has handcycled the Silver Strand Half-Marathon every year since 2002. In addition to sports, Mike loves reading, video games, and camping. He is interested in Japanese language and cultural and would like to study in Japan while he is in college. Mike gets great grades, so he will surely be able to accomplish this! Mike aspires to be a writer and has already written some excellent short stories.

Mike is currently helping to promote a free event called the SDASF Stroll and Roll for Wheelchair Sports. It will include wheelchair sports demonstrations and a short walkathon fundraiser at NTC/Liberty Station Park in Point Loma on Oct. 30 at 8 am (registration begins at 7 am). Money raised from this event will help SDASF continue to provide wheelchair sports opportunities for kids and adults in San Diego County. Without it, the organization will continue to struggle and may have to cut more programs. Contribution, registration and volunteer information about the event can be found at www.sdASF.org. If interested, please support "Team Mike" or other athletes at this event.

Health... Just Common Horse Sense

by Dr. Donald Adema

Tomorrow the seniors who utilize the relatively new medical library next to Grossmont Hospital will receive a lecture on inflammation. The introduction is supposed to discuss the osteopathic approach and compare it to the allopathic, supposedly more traditional, approach to medical care. Sadly, that should take about three minutes. Medical protocols, insurance driven formularies and reimbursement driven algorithms have pretty much morphed both approaches into one. Creativity is not readily rewarded and if the socialized medicine thrust of our present leadership moves forward, one size will fit all. Yes, Mrs. A and Trish have both counseled me on straying into politics. Will I listen? Hmmm.

The major thrust of the interaction will be on inflammation. It will pull inflammation into as many chronic diseases as time will allow and provide solutions that do not just simply turn of the warning signals. Yes, it is all about inflammation, not cholesterol.

As the baby boomers become the largest medical consumer and the majority are retired or are gearing up for retirement, they have time to explore. Hopefully after the lecture they will consider what caused the need for the medication. Hopefully after the lecture they will understand that a colonoscopy is not a preventative measure but a diagnostic measure. Hopefully they will think and not just react to an increasing number of "medicine by fear" tactics. Could be fun? Could be dangerous? Stay tuned.

For questions or comments for Dr. Adema, please write to Horse Sense Questions, C/O Adema Family Medicine, 10201 Mission Gorge Road, Santee, CA 92071.

Kissing Nun

A cab driver picks up a nun. She gets into the cab, and the cab driver won't stop staring at her.

She asks him why he is staring.

He replies: "I have a question to ask you, but I don't want to offend you".

She answers, "My son, you cannot offend me. When you're as old as I am and have been a nun as long as I have, you get a chance to see and hear just about everything. I'm sure that there's nothing you could say or ask that I would find offensive."

"Well, I've always had a fantasy to have a nun kiss me."

She responds, "Well, let's see what we can do about that. But first, you have to be single and you must be Catholic."

The cab driver is very excited and says, "Yes, I'm single and Catholic!"

"OK" the nun says. "Pull off to the side of the road, "maybe we will see what we can do."

The nun plants a whopper of a kiss on the cabbie! But when they get back on the road, the cab driver starts crying.

"My dear child," said the nun, why are you crying?"

"Forgive me, but I've sinned. I lied. I must confess, I'm married and I'm Jewish."

The nun says, "That's OK, my name is Kevin and I'm going to a Halloween party."

'Beauty & The Beast' Lumiere ready to light up the stage

Interview
by Diana Saenger

Since the story of Beauty & the Beast first hit the big screen and later video and DVD outlets, America has loved the story of a simple girl who longs for true love. Filled with fanciful characters, a wonderful Academy Award-winning score by Alan Menkin and lyrics by the late Howard Ashman and lots of humor, it's a tale fit for imagination. Fifteen years ago a creative team produced a Broadway show of the story that earned critical acclaim. Those same creators have returned to the stage with a new touring show of Beauty & the Beast and it plays at the Civic Theatre October 26 – 31, 2010.

With a book written by Linda Woolverton, direction by Rob Roth, choreography by Matt West, costumes by Ann Hould-Ward (Tony Award-winner for her work on Disney's Beauty and the Beast), lighting design by Natasha Katz, scenic design by Stanley A. Meyer, sound design by John Petrafesa Jr. and music supervision by Michael Kosarin, there's magic that awaits audiences.

Merritt David Janes, who plays Lumiere in the show, took time out of the show's appearance in Arizona for an interview. He has a cornucopia of artistic talents and appearances including roles in Circle In The Square, The Wedding Singer (Robbie Hart), Sweeney Todd (Sweeney), Little Shop (The Dentist), Two Gentlemen of Verona (The Duke), Grease (Danny), and Works of Shakespeare Abridged (Adam). He's performed at Carnegie Hall, Broadway's Beacon Theatre and Notre Dame Cathedral in Paris. Janes earned a Bachelor of Music at the University of Maine. He can perform in different dialects, plays the trumpet, piano and guitar.

Q. Did you specifically go after the role of Lumiere?

MJ: I went in to audition for the lead since I was lucky enough to get both leads in The Wedding Singer and Sweeney Todd. But the creative team thought Lumiere was a better fit for me, and I am glad because I'm having so much fun with this character.

The original story is about Belle, a young woman in a provincial town, and the Beast, who is really a young prince trapped in a spell placed by an enchantress. If the Beast can learn to love and be loved, the curse will end and he will be transformed to his former self. But time is running out. If the Beast does not learn his lesson soon, he and his household will be doomed for all eternity.

Q. Is the touring show close to the original show?

MJ: It is, and this is the first tour of the new version of the show. The same Broadway directors who created this show got together and have given it new life with new choreography, new costumes and set pieces, and they have done a fantastic job.

Q. Is there added pressure to perform a character from one of the most famous stories of all time that's been reproduced in so many mediums?

MJ: There's always pressure if you let it get to you. I had a similar situation when I played the Adam Sandler role in The Wedding Singer and Sweeney Todd the year after Johnny Depp starred in the film. But while people get used to seeing something one way, it's important to remember what you have to offer and forget yourself in the process. I focus on bringing something unique to the role and offering a different portrayal that people get a chance to experience.

Q. You have a very eclectic

'Hereafter' is slow and uneven

Review by Diana Saenger

Clint Eastwood is one of our most prolific and respected filmmakers. His movie awards are numerous, but he's had a few misses that didn't score well with the general public. Hereafter – based on an exploratory notion of connecting with those who have left us – may be one to add to that list.

Hereafter concerns what might happen after we pass and if it's possible to connect with a loved one through a medium/psychic. Matt Damon portrays George Lonegan, a reluctant psychic who – after becoming famous for this ability – no longer wants any part of it, even though many want to search for the truth through him.

George tells his brother Billy (Jay Mohr) several times, "It's not a gift, it's a curse." However, Billy continues to leak his brother's fame and one by one people search George out – a woman who lost her baby, a twin boy whose brother is killed, a man who lost his wife and eventually a woman who endures a tsunami – which is detailed in the opening scenes of Hereafter and comes across as one of the best segments of the film.

While the idea of Hereafter and the months of buildup seemed intriguing, I found the movie dull and boring. There's a lot of unevenness in the story, including how George continually tells everyone "I don't even do this anymore," then backs down and holds their hands until he gets that bolt to his body which means he's in contact with the person's deceased connection.

Because the film focuses on only a few main subjects and spends little time on each, we can't bond or care about the characters. Damon reaches some emotional peaks but seems detached by his stilted and repetitive dialogue. The only time he seems to come alive is when he's in a cooking class – a totally fish out of water for this story – with a young girl played by Bryce Dallas Howard.

and impressive resume doing everything from the outrageous Sweeny Todd to singing at the Notre Dame Cathedral. Is this something you strive for or has it happened by chance?

MJ: Sweeny Todd was one of my favorite roles to play, and I went through every possible emotional state in the show. I enjoy this ability to flip the pancake and go from one different part to another. I sang at Notre Dame Cathedral with a U.S. youth tour when I was just out of high school. It was exciting, and I got to sing a solo where Napoleon crowned himself emperor.

Q. I believe your mother was partly the inspiration for you to take up a musical career?

MJ: Yes, she is the concert-mistress for the Vermont Philharmonic. My family was very musical and always had a big musical influence and inspiration on me. My grandfather was a great pianist, and I'm staying with my cousin right now, and he's the lead singer of the Kingston Trio. We're having lots of guitar fun.

The cast of the show also includes Liz Shivenor (Belle), Justin Glaser (Beast), Nathaniel Hackmann (Gaston), Michael Fatica (Lefou), Sabina Petra (Mrs. Potts), Keith Kirkwood (Cogsworth), Erin Elizabeth Coors (Babette), Christopher Spencer (Maurice), Jen Bechter (Madame De La Grande Bouche), Jeremiah Frank Burch III or/and Reese Sebastian Diaz (Chip) and Nate Suggs (Monsieur d'Arque).

Q. What's it like to work with this cast?

MJ: They are amazing. It's like a traveling baseball team that has a great collaboration. We're together and working every day. This cast will more than meet expectations in this story of Beauty and the Beast, and Nathaniel Hackmann, who voices Gaston, is fantastic.

Q. What's the draw for people to attend this show?

MJ: As I mentioned, it's the first tour of the new version and all the people who created it on Broadway have put in a lot of great work to recreate it including bringing in seasoned performers. Beauty and the Beast is wonderful for families and a great show for kids to have their first theatre experience.

ard. Once she learns about this special ability she too wants to connect with someone. Reluctantly George agrees but her plotline goes nowhere once he does the hand connect and she acts wounded and refuses to talk to him anymore. We never learn why.

One intriguing part of the movie involves the plotline of the London twins (Frankie and George McLaren) who are struggling to survive with a drug addicted mother. The heart tugging that begins when one is killed mirrors the drama Eastwood stirred up in Changeling.

Although the film runs only a little more than two hours, it feels like four; and I never checked my watch so many times before at a screening. Hereafter suffers from a plodding script, a shoot in three different locations, which leaves us cold and in unfamiliar territory, and a key character who knows what he wants but takes no bold steps to get it. Even Damon appears confused throughout the movie.

Chargers fumble away another win

by Chuck Karaszia

The San Diego Chargers were defeated by the New England Patriots 23-20 last Sunday in a tough, gut-wrenching loss. Continuing their mantra this season, the Bolts got behind early, made critical turnovers and mistakes, rallied in the second half, only to fall short on the scoreboard.

Chargers fans left Qualcomm Stadium stunned after watching their team give it away with four first-half turnovers. The Chargers stepped on their own feet with three lost fumbles and an interception before the intermission.

"We don't give ourselves a chance to win football games with the things we do early in games. This game was a totally different group of guys with the same type of plays," confessed Chargers head coach Norv Turner.

On the first play Bolts wide receiver Buster Davis lost the ball, luckily recovering his own fumble. A portend of what was next to occur.

Backup tight end Kris Wilson continued the malady fumbling after being hit by Patriot inside linebacker Brandon Spikes.

Then it got more strange... Wide receiver Richard Goodman starting his first game for San Diego caught a 25-yard Philip Rivers pass, then put the ball on the ground without being touched by a defender. New England recovered the fumble.

On the Chargers next possession, Rivers threw a lateral to Jacob Hester who let the ball go. Patriots linebacker Rob Ninkovich scooped up the ball and rambled 63-yards before being tackled by Rivers at the Chargers 8-yard line.

Totally bizarre... Chargers special teams had another meltdown allowing a 34-yard punt return. Cornerback Antoine Cason was flagged for a pass interference penalty allowing another New England scoring drive.

All of these mistakes led to three first half New England scores. A one-yard TD pass from Brady to TE Gronkowski and 2 Gostkowski field goals (40, 35).

The Patriots led at halftime 13-3. The third quarter wasn't any better.

A 15-yard Antonio Garay roughing the passer penalty on the second play after halftime was critical in allowing New England's longest drive of the game 17 plays, 79-yards. This culminated in a 1-yard Green-Ellis TD run making the score 20-3 Patriots.

Fourth quarter action saw the Chargers fighting back, first scoring on a Kris Brown 28-yard field goal. Brown was signed earlier in the week to replace the injured Nate Kaeding (groin).

After another Gostkowski field goal (35-yards), the Bolts trimmed the Patriots lead to just three points (23-20). Quarterback Philip Rivers again valiantly guided his team to two late touchdown drives (Gates 5-yard pass, Tolbert 1-yard run).

The Chargers defense played well enough to win.

They stopped a signature Belichick decision to go for it on fourth down. Bolts linebacker Antwan Applewhite stuffed running back Green-Ellis for a 2-yard loss, turning the ball over to the Chargers with over a minute and change left in the game and renewed hope.

Rivers guided his team to the Patriots 27-yard line. After a false start penalty by Louis Vazquez put the team back 5-yards, Kris Brown attempted a 50-yard game-tying field goal that bonked off the right goal post depicting the way the Chargers season has gone this far.

The Chargers out-gained the Patriots 363-yards to 179.

Next up: Tennessee Titans at Qualcomm Stadium. Kickoff 1:05 p.m.

Walking In Faith

by Diana Saenger

Hundreds of youth bands start up every year – the kids' starry-eyed dreams hang in the balance that they will be something unique and find fame and fortune. This summer San Diego saw the emergence of yet another hopeful group when the Dannie Marie Band started playing in different arenas. Their mix of country rock, pop, some original tunes and Christian worship music made instant fans of their audiences, but their demeanor, influenced by band leader Dannie Marie Pupa, set the group solidly apart from their peers.

Along with the inclusion of a few worship songs, these young Christians are not afraid to let their listeners know how faith guides them and their music. But it's their uncontainable joy that speaks louder than their heartfelt words about who they are and what their mission in life is all about.

Dannie Marie started in Christian Community Theatre as a young child. She acquired her guitar when she was 16 and started writing songs. Her parents are very supportive of her musical passion, even allowing her to go to Los Angeles to attend music workshops. "I had written some original songs, but I thought it would be awesome to have the full sound of a band; so that was my next step towards a musical career," she said.

Six months ago she announced at her church – Foot-hills in El Cajon – that she was looking for band members. Shortly after at a church retreat she met Ryan Poole, a drummer who had other friends that played instruments. Adding members Coe Schneider (bass), Taylor Smith (back ground vocalist), Obediah Byrd (electric guitar) and Tim Amposta (acoustic guitar), the Dannie Marie Band was born.

Dannie Marie writes a lot of the original music and her mother who is also the band manager, writes some as well. Since she was young, Dannie Marie said she loved the imagery and energy of emotion created in her acting classes. She soon learned how to transform that creativity into writing songs. "I picture it as a music video, seeing the story in my head and then I start writing the lyrics," she said. "I get my guitar and start strumming chords together and pick out the melody for the chorus then come back to the bridge. The band members write their own riffs and instrumental hooks to my melodies."

The process can take four or five hours, but to Dannie Marie this is now her main goal in life. She graduated from Steel Canyon high school and works with her mom in creating a business based on the band. Although someday she would like to attend Belmont University in Nashville, her focus is on reading about songwriting and industry, writing music and playing the guitar – she gets lessons from Byrd. And then there's marketing; booking performances, networking and follow up with people and radio stations. Guiding her every step of the way is her steadfast faith.

"It gives me a hope that never fades," Dannie Marie said. "I know that whatever I'm going through God has a purpose for my life. And I have an indescribable eternal happiness to know that when I die, I'll be in Heaven."

No one can deny that Dannie Marie and her band members don't uphold their convictions. They tell those listening to their band exactly how they feel about God, what he's done for them in their lives and invite them to their church. While some young musicians might see this as a hindrance to their career, Dannie Marie believes this is why she has a career.

"When I was little I felt God put this mission on my heart," she said. "It's not been easy. I've gone through a lot of rejection and struggling pursuing different paths, and all the time God has been with me working behind the scenes. The strength and hope he has given me is something I want to share with other people, and I feel I cannot leave an audience without sharing this with them."

A few weeks ago Dannie Marie, her mother and band member Coe Schneider made a trip to Nashville to hand out demos of their latest CDs and enjoyed meeting industry professionals and performing at open mic nights. Performing at The Bluebird Café, a Nashville landmark where country stars Garth Brooks and Taylor Swift were discovered, is only one of the highlights of the trip.

This December the Dannie Marie Band will have a CD release party and they are focusing on more shows. Along every step of the way, Dannie Marie never forgets her main goal. "In the Bible there's a great commission that says; 'Go into all the world and preach the good news to all creation.' My main goal in life is to glorify God in all that I do. I hope that's to sell out an arena so I can let everyone in it know about God."

(While freedom of religion continues to be challenged, millions of Americans walk in faith everyday. Each person has his own mission and goal – most selfless, wanting only to obey God's word. This column hopes to share some incredible journeys by passionate people that make every day living a little better. Dear Dr. Luauna

I am 17 years old and torn between my high school friends and being a true Christian. When I'm at church, I feel good, I enjoy the sermons and I want to follow Jesus, but I don't want to be a hypocrite. I want to fit in and I don't want to miss out on fun.

Signed, High School Hypocrite
Dear High School Hypocrite,

Every teenager faces the same decisions and temptations you are facing right now. They are a trick of the enemy for everyone from every age; he makes the world look appealing, through popular culture; music, movies, television, the occult (sorcery, vampires, etc). The truth is the way of the world only leads to emptiness and confusion. I John 2:16, "For all that is in the world—the lust of the flesh, the lust of the eyes, and the pride of life—is not of the Father but is of the world."

Jesus said, He came to give us abundant life! You can have fun serving the Lord and living for Christ with all of your heart. The benefits are you will have peace, joy, and true happiness, things your friends are searching for, things the world cannot give you. Many of your friends are hurting deep in their heart, some on the verge of suicide, you could be a bright light, shining for Jesus.

When I received Jesus, I was faced with similar choices, I knew beyond a shadow of a doubt what the world had to offer: pain, heartache, and destruction. The devil destroyed my husband, he was murdered at a young age. The enemy of my soul tried to kill me with cancer, he tried to rob my purpose through the illusion of riches, rejection, hatred, anger and bondage to drugs. It is no illusion to me. I chose to serve Jesus with my whole life over 32 years ago, I have not missed out on fun and I have no regrets. I am living my life to it's fullest, by God's grace I have traveled around the world and preached the gospel on six continents, across the United States.

The Lord has blessed me with health, deep joy and Jesus restored everything the enemy tried to steal from me. Surrender and you will find what you are looking for in Jesus, I will be praying for you! James 1:2-25

Holiday safety tips for your pet

Home for the holidays can mean colorful decorations, sumptuous food and spirited cheer between friends and family. Unfortunately, it can also mean danger for the family pet.

Sweets, decorations and a multitude of guests can adversely affect your pet's health and behavior.

"There are lots of pet hazards during the holidays, but the right training can keep your dog safe," says Dawn Sylvia-Stasiewicz, trainer of Senator Ted Kennedy's dog Splash and

Bo Obama, the First Family's dog, and author of the new book "The Love That Dog Training Program."

Common holiday decorations and treats that are toxic to dogs and other pets include mistletoe berries, poinsettia leaves, tinsel and water from a tree stand. In addition, your dog's appetite for unattended holiday chocolates, poultry bones or holiday decorations can result in emergency visits to the vet.

To keep pets safe, try keeping things out of reach or make them inaccessible, such as using a tree skirt to keep dogs from drinking water in a tree stand. But solid training based on positive reinforcement, especially for that new puppy you got for the holidays, is often the best prevention technique.

"Canine communication is usually visual, not verbal," says Sylvia-Stasiewicz. "Starting off with hand signals for 'sit,' 'down,' and 'stay,' encourages your dog to watch you closely, thereby making them more obedient once you add a verbal cue."

You should also positively reinforce good behavior in your dog instead of punishing bad behavior. That means your dog should come to understand that when he sits, he gets a reward -- either a toy or a treat.

"Dogs love making trades for something of equal or lesser value," Sylvia-Stasiewicz says. "If you teach your dog that bringing you a particular object will result in him receiving a more desirable alternative, such as a favorite toy or treat, then he'll be less likely to hold onto dangerous holiday decorations."

For anxious dogs, incessant doorbell ringing and an abundance of guests may be unnerving, leading them to act out. In order to give dogs a sanctuary, Sylvia-Stasiewicz recommends rewarding dogs for spending time in their crate. That way, they begin to associate their crate as a safe haven from the party, not a jail from which to escape.

For more tips on training dogs to be safe during the holidays, check out Sylvia-Stasiewicz's new book with Larry Kay, "The Love That Dog Training Program."

"The lessons learned from good parenting are also applicable in the dog world," says Sylvia-Stasiewicz. "Fortunately, it's never too late to teach an old dog new tricks."

Chocolate is no treat for pets

Chocolate Halloween candy may be a treat for children but poses a serious threat to pets, warns an expert.

Pets who consume chocolate can experience vomiting, diarrhea, excessive thirst and urination, irregular heartbeat, tremors, seizures and even death, said Susan Nelson, a Kansas State University veterinarian. These problems are mainly caused by a substance in chocolate called theobromine.

Different types of chocolate have varying concentrations of theobromine. Baking chocolate contains the most, semi-sweet and milk chocolate sport a medium amount, and white chocolate has the least, Nelson explained in a university news release.

If your pet consumes a large quantity of chocolate, you should call a veterinarian or emergency clinic immediately, Nelson said.

"Chocolate consumption is a very common problem among pets, dogs especially," but it can also harm cats, birds, rats and ferrets, Nelson said in the news release. "It is important to recognize that individual reactions vary by pets, but it is best to assume your pet is one of the sensitive ones and not delay in seeking advice from your veterinarian. Be aware of the chocolate sources in your house, and tell any new dog owner about this potential threat to their pet."

In order to protect pets, she suggests keeping all foods out of their reach and confining pets during family gatherings and parties so that guests don't feed them
