Everyone has a rollicking good time at Quiz Kids radio show n Sunday afternoons Alpine's Chuck Taylor and his daughter Sherri Moyer can be found at the studios of KCBO 1170. While the studios are relatively quite on Sundays, Taylor's Quiz Kids program is anything but. The lively chatter as kids anxiously await questions Taylor fires at them or the hilarious banter from Moyer as her dad's rebel-rousing co-host brings the studio alive.

The Quiz Kids program was started a few years ago and features kids in 6, 7, 8 or 9th grades who compete two at time against one another and at times, school against school by answering grade appropriate academic questions.

Taylor, who earned a degree in Broadcast Journalism and his career throughout several states; has always had a thing for kids. He's done play by play of youth sports games, been secretary of the Alpine Little League and is chairman of PLAY, a nonprofit group pushing for more sports fields in Alpine. He's also very much about community.

In a previous interview with Taylor he told me, "My grandfather believed wholeheartedly in giving back to the community you live in. And he didn't have any money. I admired his attitude and this radio station allows me to continue that philosophy.

On the Sunday I attended the show the Quiz Kids were Hannah Groll and Nevea Atherton, seventh graders from Foothills Christian school. Taylor said school principal Regina Hoffman selected the girls to compete.

Taylor runs the girls through a test run in another studio where the girls' parents and siblings stand in the background cheering them on. Then it's time to move to the

What makes todav even more fun is Groll and Atherton are best friends. But each is determined to win the competition and carefully lets Taylor know who their online secret genius will be that can answer one question for the girls.

Called Intelligent Talk, Taylor gets the questions on Science, History, and Geography directly from the school's work plans. No math, he said, there's not enough time for them to do math in their heads. So he begins with questions some the girls could answer and some they couldn't.

KCBQ RADIO SAN DIEGO

Taylor said it annoys him that Moyer always gives the kids hints, but it really ups the fun quotient of the show. Or sometimes she just pokes fun at her dad, which makes everyone laugh. She's quick enough and entertaining enough to have her own late night TV show. Moyer also has fun with a small keyboard that sends amusing noises like explosions – or funny sayings from people such as Arnold Schwarzenegger, right into the headsets of the contestants as they are thinking or her dad trying to get a question out. It makes everyone laugh, and Taylor has to rein the kids back in so they can go on with the

More fun erupts during the breaks when the show features its sponsors – currently Kamps Propane, Jackson & Foster Heating and Air Conditioning, and Moyer Chiropractic

"It's really a fun show," Taylor said. "And it's family oriented and one of the only one left around that the entire family can enjoy together.'

The kids get a certificate, T-shirt and gift certificates to places like Ultra Star theaters or Mario's Italian restaurant in Lakeside.

The Quiz Kids program is broadcast every Sunday, 1-2 p.m. 1170 on the a.m. dial or on the web at kcbq.com. Visitors can also listen to past shows on the site.

Vickie Pierce, R.N., a clinical surgery nurse at Sharp Memorial Hospital, was awarded the prestigious 2011 Jerry G. Peers Distinguished Service Award at this year's Association of peri-Operative Registered Nurses (AORN) Congress in Philadelphia. Pierce, a La Mesa resident, is the first staff nurse to receive this award.

The Jerry G. Peers Distinguished Service Award is given in recognition of an individual's significant contributions to the growth, progress and welfare of AORN. The award is named after Jerry G. Peers, one of the founding members of AORN who also served as national president and executive director.

Pierce was honored for her dedication to the organization on both the national and local level. She has been a member of AORN for 35 years. During that time, she has served on AORN's national board of directors and the national leadership and development committee. She also served as president of the local San Diego chapter for three terms and has held numerous other elected positions throughout the years.

"Vickie has been an integral part of Sharp Memorial's surgery department for 36 years," said Beverly Self, Director of Surgical Services, Sharp Memorial Hospital. "Her cando attitude and dedication to both the field of nursing and to AORN are an inspiration to us all. We are so excited and proud of Vickie for receiving this distinct honor."

AORN is a national association that promotes safe patient care and is recognized as an authority for safe operating room practices. It is a definitive source for information and guiding principles that support day-to-day perioperative nursing practice. AORN is also the premier resource for perioperative nurses, advancing the profession and the professional with valuable guidance as well as networking and resource-sharing opportunities.

Lakeside Roundup

by Patt Bixby

Lakeside Town Hall Meeting

This week's Lakeside Town Hall Meeting was a chance for members of the Lakeside community to discuss thoughts and concerns with Captain Musgrove of the Santee Sheriff's department. The audience had a number of important questions regarding mail theft, graffiti and nuisance properties. Captain Musgrove told the audience, "It's important to discuss the small things, before they become big things."

Captain Musgrove introduced Sheriff's Deputy Ruben Medina who patrols in Lakeside. Deputy Medina provided the audience with valuable information and agreed that vehicle burglaries are a problem in Lakeside. "Always lock your vehicle, and don't leave valuables inside," he said.

Navigation devices are a high ticket item for thieves. Mail left in plain view in a vehicle is an invitation to mail theft which can lead to identity theft. California comes in second for identity theft, Florida being number one. Copper wire theft is still a problem in the East County especially as the price of metal keeps going up.

Captain Musgrove and Deputy Medina discussed the raise in illegal use of prescription drugs. Graffiti removal was discussed. The Lakeside Chamber has been working to organize a group of citizens who would help with tracking and removal of graffiti. For more information contact the Chamber at 561-1031.

No State IOU's

Senator Joel Anderson's legislation to protect taxpayers from IOU's cleared the Senate committee on April 26 by unanimous votes. "IOU's are yet another nail in the coffin for California's struggling businesses and taxpayers," Anderson said. "These measures could make the difference between a small business closing or staying open, or between a person keeping or losing their job!"

Senate Bill 120 would force state agencies and departments to accept states IOU's as payments for bills owed to the state. SB11 protects taxpayers by prohibiting the state from charging interest, late fees or penalties against taxpayer or businesses that are late in paying a state obligation because they have been paid by the state with an IOU, up to the amount of that IOU.

Wheel-Friendly Park

Wheel Friendly Park is one step closer to a reality in Lakeside after an April 27 meeting at the Lakeside Community Center. The design development group chosen to design the park is Action Sports Development LLC out of Carlsbad, CA. Kanten Russell, Principal project manager for Action Sports Development, presented three conceptual drawings for the proposed park. The park size is approximately 13,000 sq. ft. and will include artistic features along with visible site lines from streets and parking lot. The hybrid style skate plaza must accommodate all skate levels. The park will be "ride at your own risk."

Following the introduction of the design concepts, the audience of nearly 50 people broke up into small groups for design sessions. The groups drew original community concepts of what they would like to see in the park. Each group presented their concept for general discussion and consensus of the direction they would like to see for Lakeside's Wheel Friendly Park.

May 14: Reality TV stars Bill and Giuliana Rancic are teaming up with MasterCard and California Coast Credit Union to help young professionals in San Diego at the Balboa Theatre to conquer money management and budgeting. Bill is an entrepreneur and winner of "The Apprentice," and his wife is an E! News Correspondent. This free interactive seminar will focus on ways to pay off college loans, save, check out mortgage options, or even plan for a family. The event features a meet-and-greet with Bill & Giuliana and a question-and-answer segment.

May 14 - 21: The Grossmont College Theatre Arts Department will present Blithe Spirit by Noel Coward, Directed by Henry J. Jordan, May 12-14 and 18-21, at 7:30 p.m. and May 14 and 21 at 2 p.m. in the Stagehouse Theatre. The 2010-2011 Season wraps up with Noel Coward's "improbable farce," Blithe Spirit. The smash comedy hit of the London and Broadway stages, this classic offers some of Coward's funniest characters. Charles Condomine, a cantankerous novelist, is haunted by his first wife Elvira, after the "happy medium" Madam Arcate arrives. All bets are off for Charles as his first and then second wife, "the Blithe Spirits" haunt him from the other side. Don't miss this "comedy of manners" from the great Noel Coward. Construction immediately commenced, and the first County Fair in Del Mar opened on October 8, 1936. The 75th Anniversary exhibit will feature three segments: A look back at the history of the San Diego County Fair, a retrospective of thoroughbred horse racing, and auto racing at the Fairgrounds. Rear Adm. Patrick H. Brady, commander of Space and Naval Warfare Systems Command, addressed the San Diego Military Advisory Council April 20, unveiling SPAWAR's economic contribution to the San Diego economy.

SPAWAR's 4.636 military and civilian employees located in San Diego earn a total payroll of $520 million dollars in 2009, resulting in a significant economic impact.

"Our people do a lot of business in the community and as an organization we do a lot of business with industry and small business," Brady stated during his keynote speech.

In FY 2009, SPAWAR's global contracts at San Diego headquarters totaled $2.9 billion and $1.1 billion at SPAWAR Systems Center Pacific, also located in San

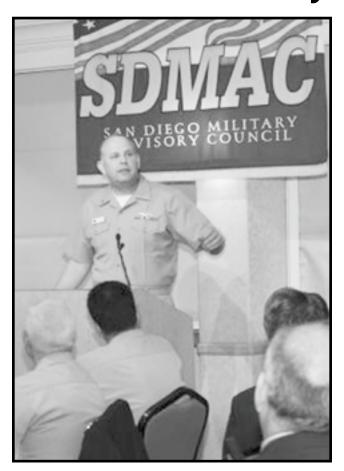

The total military economic contribution to include salaries, retirement, procurement and aid in the San Diego region was $30.5 billion. 26 percent of jobs in San Diego County were created or supported by military spending.

"We are fortunate to have a real synergy between military and industry that can provide the high quality capabilities our warfighters demand,' said Brady.

Marine's quick reaction saves life

AMP DWYER, Afghanistan – Sometimes quick thinking and acts of bravery can change a person's life, and sometimes it just enables another's to continue on.

Cpl. Eduardo Valdez Rojas,

Cpl. Eduardo Valdez Rojas, from San Diego, a landing support specialist with Combat Logistics Battalion 7, 2nd Marine Logistics Group (Forward), poses for a picture alongside Lt. Col. Craig P. Barnett, from Maricopa, Ariz., the commanding officer for CLB-7, after his award ceremony, April 26, aboard Camp Dwyer, Afghanistan. Valdez Rojas received a Navy and Marine Corps Achievement Medal for saving the life of a civilian contractor while offloading a plane, which brought food for troops operating in the area in support of the International Security Assistance Force from San Diego, a landing support specialist with Combat Logistics Battalion 7, 2nd Marine Logistics Group (Forward), was in the right place at the right time while supervising an offload and was able to prevent a civilian contractor from being crushed, April 14, aboard Camp Dwyer, Afghanistan.

Standard procedures dictate that landing support Marines oversee the loading and unloading of cargo by civilian contractors to ensure all regulations are followed.

Prior to starting his shift, Valdez Rojas went through every step of the process to ensure he knew exactly what was supposed to occur and be ready for any situation.

"I make sure I understand what we are going to do before we actually do it," he said. "I study every possibility and always think about the worst case scenario. We work with big equipment and a lot of different people."

Sgt. Alexander J. Tobusch, from Batavia, Ill., a landing support specialist with CLB-7, was also supervising when the accident happened.

"We saw [one of the contractors] trying to lift the pallet with a jack so the fork lift could pick it up from the plane's ramp, Tobusch said.

At that time another contractor, who was standing on the other side of the ramp assisting in the offload, noticed the pallet was going to fall and tried to hold it in place. The weight of the pallet knock the man off balance, and he fell off the ramp and landed on his back. The 1,300-pound pallet followed him.

"I have never seen somebody move so fast," Tobusch explained. "He ran toward the guy and dragged him away as we saw the pallet land right where he fell.

"It seemed so natural, like he was ready for something like that already, but I would have never expected anything less than what he did that day, he added. "I have known him since he was a [private first class] and he has always been selfless ... He always put the others before himself.

The diligence to his duties and demonstration of courage earned Valdez Rojas a Navy and Marine Corps Achievement Medal during an award ceremony, April 26, aboard Camp Dwyer, Afghanistan.

"It is good to be recognized, but I would do it again if I had to, with or without recognition," Valdez Rojas concluded. "I think the best satisfaction I can get out of this experience is the fact that I helped someone live. That person is still alive and can go back to his family because I did something.

Inspiration

The last Apple Fritter surviving

been chief cook and bottle washer in the house while the Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage was visiting our son and his family in Ohio . I like nothing better than being in charge. Of course, I wonder what in the world I am in charge of when I am the only one in the house.

I started out the week planning my menu. When in charge I have one basic rule, dinnertime is any time I am hungry. My wife has the sophisticated idea that meals should be at set times of the day. That's for folk who are stiff and suffer no flexibility in life. I, on the other hand, am the epitome of flexibility. I roll with whatever comes around.

The main course of my menu for the week was pepperoni pizza. After all, you cannot go wrong with pizza. So, I bought five large pizzas, one for each day of the week. This menu planning is really easy. I intended to pile my pizzas on the counter, begin at the very top and work my way to the bottom, one pizza for each day of the week. Just to show I am as organized as my wife is, I marked each box for the day of the week that it would be eaten. Monday was on top and of course, Friday was on the bottom.

As everybody knows, pizza by itself is a rather lonely meal. Every pizza needs a little bit of pizzazz to make it palatable. I know nothing more pizzazzable then Apple Fritters. Usually, when I am not in charge of the menu, Apple Fritters are not permitted. But this is not usually. I am in charge and so Apple Fritters are the companions of my pizza for the week.

Unlike most people, I am not that fond of change unless of course it is jingling in my pocket. When some politician gets on his high horse and talks about change, I immediately turn him off. I know the only change he is interested in is that change jingling in my pocket.

Some people say variety is the spice of life, but the older I get the less spice I really need, unless it is Old Spice and I need gallons of that.

For those of us who are culinary novices, there is something to say for having a well-developed routine. Once that routine is developed, there is no cause for any more thought. Anything that cuts down on my thought process is okay with me. When somebody says, it is the thought that really counts, just count me out.

And so for the week I set before me a feast of pepperoni pizza and Apple Fritters. To go with this delectable meal I have an unlimited supply of coffee. I must say that I do love my coffee. Everything goes better with a good steaming cup of Joe.

The week started just fine. Monday my pepperoni pizza was fresh and hot. I went to the bakery and bought three dozen Apple Fritters. After all, you never know when somebody will drop in for lunch. How embarrassing it would be if I did not have an Apple Fritter to offer a visitor. It would be downright inhospitable.

Monday was the only day the pizza was warm. After all, I have yet to master the delicate intricacies of working the oven. The last time I used it I burnt everything to an unrecognizable crisp and almost burned the house down in the process. The general rule in our house is that I do not touch the oven.

No matter, pepperoni pizza is good hot or cold, especially if I have an Apple Fritter to go with it.

For Friday breakfast, I noticed that the pepperoni pizza had a little bit of green fur on the top. I'm not quite sure if this is some exotic kind of pizza or what. But I must say by Friday this is a rather nice change. Maybe there is something to say for change after all.

Since it was Friday, the biggest thing to do was to get rid of every evidence that I was in charge for the week. Meaning, of course, all the pizza boxes had to be destroyed and there could not be an Apple Fritter on the premise.

I looked at my stash of Apple Fritters and for some reason I had four left over. I ate one while I thought of what to do with the remaining Fritters. I decided to hide the leftover Apple Fritters; after all, it would be a shame to throw something so delicious away. I was sure my wife would be too tired from her trip to look for such things as Apple Fritters and I picked a place she would never think to look.

Later on that evening, I was reclining in my chair reading a book when my wife came into the room and said, "I was making the bed that you did not make all week and guess what I found under your pillow?" She then pulled from behind her back a bag I recognize as one with my Apple Fritters.

Isn't anything sacred anymore?

I was reminded of what the Bible says. "But if ye will not do so, behold, ye have sinned against the LORD: and be sure your sin will find you out" (Numbers 32:23 KJV).

Dear Dr. Luauna

Dear Readers,

I am afraid of losing my job; some of my friends have been laid off. Some of my other friends went out of business. I do not even watch the news anymore. I know the Bible says not to worry, but I am the main breadwinner of my family. Signed, Worried

Dear Worried,

These are tough economic times for many people, and you are right about the Bible saying not to be anxious and many times not to worry. God is faithful and can be trusted as your Provider. He can carry you through the lean times. He also gives us the answer in these verses as well, Philippians 4:6-7, "Do not be anxious about anything, but in every situation, by prayer and petition, with thanksgiving, present your requests to God. And the peace of God, which transcends all understanding, will guard your hearts and your minds in Christ Jesus." We can bring all of our concerns, worries and fears to the Lord in prayer, in return He will give us what we need most, "the peace of God which transcends all understanding," as you pray, let go of the worry, God's peace will replace it.

God is also faithful to answer your prayer about your job. You may be surprised. He may work a miracle where you do not lose your job after all. Many times in the Bible when God's people were in drought or facing tough times, God miraculously came through for them. I pray you do not lose your job, but even if you do, Jesus will be right there. Matthew 6:26, "Look at the birds of the air, for they neither sow nor reap nor gather into barns; yet your heavenly Father feeds them. Are you not of more value than they?" You are valuable to the Lord. He cares about you and your family. In this scripture, Jesus was talking to believers who were worried about food, drink and clothes; the basics of life. They did not have to worry. The answer is in, Matthew 6:33, "But seek first the kingdom of God and His righteousness, and all these things shall be added to you." God knows what you need, and He is able to bring you peace and provision. I will be praying for you and your family.

The Bible, Through the Eyes of a Child

Here's the version of the stories of the Bible if they were to be told by a $\mbox{child}.$

Creation

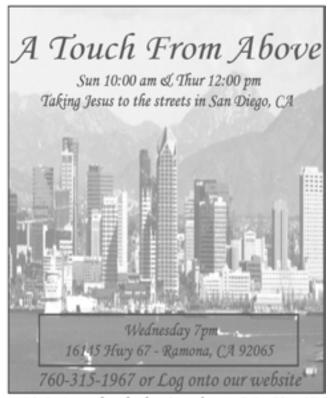

In the beginning, which was close to the start, there wasn't anything except God, darkness and some gas. The Bible says, "The Lord, thy God, is one," but I think He has to be much older than that.

Anyway, God made the world and then He said, "Give me some light," and somebody gave it to Him. He split an atom and made Eve. Adam and Eve didn't wear any clothes, but they weren't embarrassed because God hadn't invented mirrors, yet.

Adam and Eve sinned by eating one bad apple and they were driven out of the Garden of Eden. I'm not sure what God drove them in because He hadn't invented cars, either.

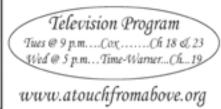

Adam and Eve's son, Cain, hated his brother as long as he was Abel. After a while, all of the first people died, except Methuselah, who lived to be, like, a million years old.

Anti-depressants given to relieve PMS — expert reveals natural nutrients to reduce symptoms early 10 years ago, the FDA approved the anti-depressant prescription drug Zoloft for the treatment of premenstrual syndrome (PMS) and one expert believes that's 10 years too long, especially when natural alternatives have been proven to reduce PMS symptoms without drugs.

"It seems almost alien to me why someone would take a drug to relieve PMS when the drug's list of potential side effects – drowsiness, nausea, headache, loss of appetite, anxiety, panic attacks, hostility, aggressiveness, restlessness and depression - are almost an identical match for the symptoms of the ailment they're trying to relieve," said Michael Mooney, Director of Research and Education at natural health company SuperNutrition Life Extension Research (www.supernutritionusa.com).

"There is a solid base of research that has shown that women can reduce PMS without taking a prescription drug. In fact, there are six simple, safe nutrients the body uses all the time that have been shown to reduce PMS discomfort - but they need to be taken in adequate potencies. These nutrients don't have a list of side effects that sound worse than the PMS itself.'

Mooney cited six natural nutrients that have been shown to relieve PMS:

• Vitamin B6 (pyridoxine) - According to a study of 630 women published in the British Journal of Clinical Practice, 100 mg to 150 mg of supplemental vitamin B6 reduced PMS in about 66 percent of the women, while 160 mg to 200 mg of vitamin B6 reduced PMS in about 79 percent of the women

- Vitamin D The Archives of Internal Medicine published a study in 2005 which concluded that women with a higher median vitamin D intake of 706 IU per day had significantly less (or no) PMS than subjects who got a median of the least amount of vitamin D, 112 IU per day. So it's not just about getting some vitamin D, but rather getting a potent dose.
- Chaste tree berry (Vitex) This extract has been shown to reduce PMS, based on a randomized placebo-controlled 3-month study of premenstrual syndrome in 170 women (average age 36) which was published in the British Medical Journal. The results showed that 20 mg of chaste berry extract reduced PMS about 28 percent better than placebo. The women noted significant reductions in irritability, mood disturbances, anger, headache, and breast fullness compared to the placebo group.
- Calcium carbonate The Journal of General Internal Medicine published the results of a study that concluded that calcium carbonate could reduce pain and water retention before and during a woman's cycle. This randomized placebo-controlled study of 78 women showed a 58 percent better reduction in PMS with 1,000 mg of calcium carbonate than with placebo during the luteal and menstrual phases of the reproductive cycle.

- blind, placebo-controlled studies published in the Journal of Women's Health showed that magnesium at 360 mg per day reduced headaches and pain, and at 200 mg reduced weight gain, fluid retention, swelling of extremities, breast tenderness and abdominal bloating.
- Vitamin E The Journal of Reproductive Medicine published a study that showed vitamin E reduced 15 categories of PMS symptoms. This randomized, placebo-controlled study confirmed a previous study that showed all major categories of PMS symptoms are improved with a daily supplementation of 400 IU of vitamin E." In all 15 categories of symptoms, vitamin E supplemented women reported 27-42 percent reduction in severity.

"The effects of these nutrients start the first month and generally reach maximum PMS reduction levels by month three," Mooney added. "Women deserve to share the fruits of modern nutritional science and be informed that they can reduce their PMS discomfort without relying on drugs with all their dangerous side effects, but instead, by using nutrients that are natural to the body in the proven effective potencies.

9/11 book publishers get reaction to Bin Laden's death

ine years and four months ago my publishing partner and I went into overdrive to respond to the pain families were suffering from the 9/11 attacks. As journalists and owners of a publishing company, we knew first hand how the written word can be more powerful than a raging river when it comes to healing.

Recognizing that an avalanche of heartwarming stories detailing courage, sacrifice and giving beyond comprehension needed to be shared with the world we began to solicit stories through our contacts. Days turned into nights—many that slipped by with endless tears.

Volunteers, editors and graphic designers pooled their talents and came to edit and sort the hundreds of stories we received. Glory: A Nation's Spirit Defeats the Attack on America debuted at a national book conference in Florida just seven weeks after 9/11. The book was featured in national magazines, on TV and radio, and won national media awards.

"We were a nation of people running on sorrow, fear and adrenalin," said Sandy Scoville CEO of SP PRESS. "Each one of us felt we had to DO something. We experienced 9/11 as Americans, and vicariously as editors – reliving the event with each story submitted to us and providing a written voice for many directly affected. For me personally, it was the most emotionally intense sleep-deprived seven weeks of my life."

It was the after effects, however, that deeply touched our hearts. The voices that repeatedly said, "Thank you for letting me breathe again." "You have changed my life with this book." "I will never forget your leading me through this horrific time in my life."

This past week our nation did indeed "defeat the attack on America." It was once again a nation brought together in praise and solidarity. From one news broadcast to another, those who lost loved ones in the 9/11 attacks voiced some comfort and a bit of closure from Bin Laden's death.

Rene Nurse, a San Diego Firefighter and member of California Task Force 8, a special Federal Government Rescue Team called USAR (Urban Search & Rescue Task Force), was sent to the Towers rubble to search for wounded victims. His shock and anger at the horrific loss of human life on September 11 was staggering, but he felt a responsibility to be there.

"It was like a scene from Dante's Inferno. The smell of body decay is everywhere," Nurse wrote in the book. He had called us when he heard about the book, but professed he didn't know what to write. I told him to write what's in his heart. He sent us 11 hand-written pages. I would later be told by him, and his wife Elsa, that it was that act that allowed him to breathe again.

"I had felt such a sadness over the misfortune of so many, but after I wrote my story I felt a sense of relief," Nurse said. "But for so long the pain hasn't stopped. And then last week they got Bin Laden. Not only is it a huge relief, it's renewed my faith in the government that they've never stopped looking for him."

M.J. Rose is an author and journalist whose newest book The Hypnotist is drawing raves from major media. A prolific writer, Rose had been jogging in Connecticut when she came upon a crowd watching the towers just as they were falling. "In this suburb that sits on the outskirts of New York City we watched the Twin Towers fall. But we didn't hear the sirens or the explosions. We only heard the gulls screaming and the widows weeping," Rose wrote in her book inclusion in our book.

"I remember it as a sad, horrific moment," Rose recalls. "I've found little relief since, and not even much closure with Bin Laden's death, as terrorism is such an insidious problem in our world. I am pleased though, that Obama was able to pull this off."

Looking back it was Lorrie Morgan-Ferrero, an awardwinning copywriter and owner of redhotcopy.com, who said in the Glory book what she really felt. She mirrored everyone's thoughts so well as she addressed Bin Laden she really had the pulse of the nation at heart. She wrote, You and your cause are regarded with pathetic shame. Your wicked plot drove up the bile, yet ignited the lifeforce deep down in all of our abdomens. You've brought God and spirituality back into our lives. You melted tears from the steely eyes of old men who may never have cried before death before. You incited apathetic young males to want to die for their country, who before couldn't see beyond their own selfcentered wants. You inflamed the repugnance of young females with the treatment of your religion's women as slaves. You've changed everything from September 11 on. Forever! You have opened the curtains for a new era – the era of righteousness. The swelling pride at being Americans has been renewed. So again I say, thank you Bin Laden. And God have mercy on your thick black soul."

This week Morgan-Ferrero said, "I was so angry back then, I wondered how anyone in the human race could cause such a tragic event. After writing my contribution for the book I felt so much stronger and could really embrace the cheering of the USA echoed around the world."

Peter Samuelson is a film producer (Samuelson is a film producer (Samuelson Productions), President of Splashlife Inc., Co-Founder of the Starlight Children's Foundation and Co-Founder and President of the First Star Inc. He was in Washington D.C. for a First Star board meeting on 9/11 when he witnessed the huge black cloud of smoke rising from the Pentagon after the attack there.

"We are privileged to work for all our children in First Star, children whose needs are the apex, the summit, the quintessence of all that we prize and seek to nurture. Because kids are our future. Indeed we will go ahead and have our board meeting, and will do so stubbornly, with resolve, with renewed dedication to what we hold dear...because these recent atrocities reaffirm our belief that the margin between evil and good is thin indeed. The outcomes of tragedy will be positive: out of the ashes of the World Trade Center will eventually come a better America and a better world. The sleeping giant has awakened." Samuelson wrote.

"A lot has happened in my life and career since then," Samuelson said, "but I am very proud that an event from 9/11 has helped change the word for the better. Melissa Helmbrecht, who was sent to council children of police and firefighters who lost a parent, and from that, was instrumental in the creation of Splashlife, as a resource and advocacy group for the rising generation of 75 million young Americans. I can't celebrate the death of any man, but when it comes to evil men like Hitler and Bin Laden, I'm glad they are gone."

Jonathan Wright was a volunteer fireman in his community. As a member of Emergency-Rescue Company #9 of the Freeport Fire Department he was eventually called to duty to look for victims in the pile from the collapse of the towers on that fateful September day. Hailing from a long line of volunteer firefighters, Wright felt a need to share the dark times when he was filled with anger over what happened to his comrades and guilt that he survived. His faith and lessons learned from the slow and costly process of emotional and physical healing in Firehouse Down: Life After Ground Zero were ones shared by many first responders and essential for anyone wanting to understand their sacrifice.

"I saw some firefighters coming out of Ground Zero. Reality was written plain and simple across their faces. One firefighter collapsed crying when a pastor approached. He walked the fireman down to the rubble-strewn street and looked to the heavens clenching his hands together as if asking God for strength," Wright wrote.

"When I completed Fire-house Down I felt a cathartic benefit," Wright said this week, "I knew I was far from healed, but I felt I made a good start toward that end – which I have yet to attain. And with the death of Bin Laden, I thought I would again find some peace. As yet, I have not. I think of my murdered brothers daily and at times it seems only to fuel the emotional fires within. My PTSD is in full drive so every day is a struggle; but my faith gets me through it all."

President Obama's words on Sunday – "It was important to protect the lives of our guys and say we got the guy," – sums up a well-planned and triumphant achievement.

As President of SP PRESS I take great pride that we contributed in a very small way to the healing of those affected by this tragedy. We learned something very basic and primitive about ourselves, our comrades, our brothers and sisters in pain, many whom we never met. We understood that this writing effort was a way of survival, of fighting back in the presence of pure evil. That healing is an ongoing process requiring all people to reach deep inside themselves to the basic goodness that resides there and use it. From the biggest corporate contribution to the smallest child drawing a picture of a flag, the American spirit roared alive - and gave us the name for this book.

"Everything is mobile these days, and our customers have a definite want for mobility," said Ceanne Guerra, Media and Public Relations Manager. "Wireless service is definitely something we wanted to offer our customers."

The grand opening showcased the new format of Cox stores that have a more customer-friendly atmosphere, according to Guerra. his past weekend Jerry Hines and his True Value store celebrated their 30th anniversary in business in Alpine. Hines said one of the reasons he's stayed in business so long is, "It's the way we treat people. You learn very quickly it's not about money, but how good of service you provide to your customers. If you do it right, you can stay in business 30 years...or maybe 35 or 40."

Customers coming out to celebrate the event got a free bucket to fill and 20 off percent of whatever they fit into it. They also received a hot dog and a coke for 30 cents, provided by the Alpine Kiwanis Cook Shack. Free drawings for prizes were held hourly; Frannie the clown made kids happy with face paintings and the crew from My107.9 entertained with live music and on-air coverage.

2011 Kia Optima EX is getting attention

by Dave Stall

ia has always built great cars, but they must have hired a pretty savvy ad agency. He introduced the Soul with all those hip hamsters be-bopping around town which has brought a lot of attention to Kia.

Now, anything Kia brings to market gets attention. Take the Optima for example, first glimpse and one really doesn't know what it is. It is gorgeous, but what European car is it? Then to find out it is a Kia. Kia has been working feverously trying to give consumers the cars and SUV's they want and the Optima is a winner.

Buyers have a few models to choose from, the LX with either a six speed manual or a electronically controlled six speed automatic transmission with overdrive, the EX with only the automatic available, the EX Turbo, and SX all sporting the six speed electronically controlled Sportmatic automatic transmission.

The engine is an all aluminum four cylinder in two configurations, the first four cylinder engine has 2,359 cubic centimeters and is found in the EX and LX auto and manual transmission equipped Kia's. The 1998 cubic centimeters four cylinder is found in the EX Turbo and the SX.

Mother Goose Parade

Fuel mileage is good, on the LX and EX six speed manual. Expect fuel economy around 24 mpg city and 35 mpg on the open road, with the automatic transmission. EX Turbo and SX cars will get an estimate of 22 mpg city and 34 mpg freeway burning 87 octane. My combine test in the EX was 32.6 not bad for a very comfortable five passenger sedan.

The Optima comes very well equipped and bases out at $22,495 and my test Optima came in at $27,440 plus tax license and transportation fees.

The car is the real story, great fuel mileage, great performance (go Turbo for more performance) the interior has plenty of room for six footers in the back seat as well as the front. Center stack has all the amenities one could ask for and easy to reach and operate. To view the clock push a button on the navigation screen and the time pops up for around 20 seconds.

Styling is what really makes the Optima stand out and the choice of colors and interiors are enough for the most discerning customer.

The safety features are abundant, air bags, crumple zones, back up camera, back seat occupants will be pleased with all the room they have and if one opts for the double sunroof they will be even happier.

The most important thing about Kia is they have a fabulous warranty, 10 year 100,000 mile powertrain warranty and a 5 year 60,000 mile limited basic warranty and 5 year 100,000 road side assistance.

Kia wants consumers to feel safe and comfortable in their cars and so they protect buyers and the car better than most manufacturers. Once behind the wheel drivers will see what all the excitement is all about!

'Born to Be Wild' is extraordinary

Review by Diana Saenger

orn To Be Wild is one of the most entertaining and enjoyable films families can see. Morgan Freeman narrates this documentary that is a passionate story about the bond between humans and animals.

Viewers are transported into two different worlds where two incredible women have donated their lives to keeping animals in their natural habitat. World-renowned primatologist Dr. Biruté Mary Galdikas founded the Orangutan Foundation in 1986 and began her life-long work at Camp Leakey, an orangutan research area within Tanjung Puting National Park and facility in the Dayak village of Pasir Panjang near Pangkalan Bun. Watching her and her workers care for these animals from birth is amazing. They treat them like babies - bottle feeding and diapering them and even cuddling them in their beds at nights and singing lullabies to them

Galdikas felt the need to create this sanctuary as illegal logging, mining and destruction of the rain forest had compromised the existence of nearly 300 orangutans. These habitats are not permanent homes to the animals, however. Once they are grown and can survive on their own, the animals are slowly released back into the wild where they do very well on their own. The love Galdikas and her workers show these fascinating animals is heartwarming and the love the animals return cue and rehabilitate elephants and return these incredible animals back to the wild. For more than 25 years Sheldrick lived and worked alongside her late husband, David, the founder Warden of Kenya's giant Tsavo National Park. She picked up his rein in rescuing elephants and today at 80 is still a champion in seeing these baby elephants brought into a nursery where they are raised until able to join the herds in the wild.

It's interesting to see her team of grown Kenyan men bottle feeding the baby elephants from a formula Sheldrick created. Each man also sleeps with his baby in its small room as the babies remember the trauma that left them motherless - usually death by poachers - so they can comfort them or cover them with a blanket.

Producer/Writer Drew Fellman, who attended last nights Reuben H. Fleet screening, was very informative about the filming of these two very different but significant worlds. The work these women and their teams perform are impressive, and the IMAX images of both species of animals are funny and heartwarming. The \mbox{IMAX} 76-foot tilted Dome screen places viewers right in the action. Born To Be Wild is a must see!

Clean teeth are a key to a healthier pet here's good news for pet owners. Improving your pet's health may be easier than you realize. The key is better oral health.

It turns out that, much like in humans, better oral health is often an important building block for more fitness and vitality for your pet.

Here are some tips that can help keep your pet healthier and its breath fresher:

- Be aware if your pet exhibits bad breath, pain around the mouth, swelling or irritation of the gums, bleeding, swelling around the jaw or nose, fever, lethargy, pain when eating or refusing to eat.
- Left untreated, oral disease in a pet can lead to receding gums, tooth loss and infections that could potentially infect the heart, liver and kidneys.

• A buildup of plaque on your pet's teeth can often lead to more serious problems. However, even the most common treatment can carry risks.

Until recently, the only way to remove plaque and tartar has been a visit to the vet for a dental cleaning—a procedure that typically involves the use of a general anesthetic. Unfortunately, that can present a problem, since anesthetic reactions can cause injury and even death. It's estimated that over 50,000 dogs and cats die every year, and 1.3 million are injured—some permanently—just from anesthesia.

• As an alternative, many pet owners are looking for ways to remove plaque that are safer and just as effective, but that don't require putting a pet under anesthesia.

For example, PetzLife Oral Care spray or gel is designed to help remove plaque and tartar, control bacteria and eliminate bad breath—and does not require the pet owner to brush a pet's teeth.

"I have often seen older pets undergo anesthesia for dental cleanings or growth removals, and they were never the same afterward. Some even developed seizures," said Susan Maier, DVM. "PetzLife Oral Care has worked on my patients that have had severe tartar and gingivitis. Before discovering this product, we had to perform dental cleanings under anesthesia or resort to keeping the animal on antibiotics. Now we can cure the problem while avoiding the anesthesia and the drugs."

The active ingredients are a blend of herbs and oils, including grapefruit seed extract, which is a natural compound often used to kill bacteria. The ingredients are described as 100 percent natural and "human grade," so they're considered safe for dogs and cats.

"I much prefer dealing with tartar problems without anesthesia when at all possible and these oral care products are simply the most effective that I have found, short of ultrasonic scaling," said Joanne V. Baldwin, DVM, Cardinal Animal Hospital.

To learn more about the pet dental products, visit www. petzlife.com or call (888) 453-4682

Many pet owners are finding that removing plaque and tartar from their pet's teeth can help control bacteria, eliminate bad breath and make for a healthier pet. One dog that has benefited from better dental care is the heavily scarred Lucas, who was one of Michael Vick's champion fighting dogs. He was rescued and learned to trust again, becoming so affectionate that he comforted Bud Groth (shown here) by licking his face when he cried at the sight of the dog's extensive injuries. Groth is the CEO of a firm that specializes in promoting better oral health for dogs and cats.
