Introducing Centennial Moments: Sharing a piece of city history

The railroad arrives in El Cajon... finally

Well, it was not for lack of trying. Any number of men had worked to interest railroad magnates into running a line to San Diego. In fact, Mayor Chase was so anxious to move his crops to market faster that he offered $10,000 to any company willing to bring a railroad to El Cajon.

One reason so many passenger cars were necessary was that the major transcontinental railroads were caught up in an all-out fare war, hoping to entice potential settlers West, there to buy the countless acres the railroads owned adjacent to their tracks. Their ploy was highly successful: beginning in 1885, the cheap fares prompted a flood of passengers from the East and Midwest. J.P.R. Hall was one of them. For one dollar a piece, he brought his wife, Charlotte, their nine children, and his parents, from Michigan to Los Angeles.

This Centennial Moment

includes an excerpt from The History of El Cajon Valley of Opportunity by Eldonna Lay, curator of the Knox Museum.

Thank you for reading our weekly Centennial Moments. For more information about El Cajon, "The Valley of Opportunity," visit our website: www.elcajon100.com.

But politics and money kept the railroad from reaching San Diego until 1885. And then, it was not until 1889 – a full two years after El Cajon's Main Street was laid out – that the railroad tracks finally crept over the Grossmont Summit.

From there, they ran down into El Cajon Heights, with a stop at the Marshall/Park railroad platform. Eventually, a spur was extended across what is now Gillespie Field, through Cowlestown (which became Santee after the widow Cowles married Milton Santee), to the tiny community of Foster.

At the height of the valley's land sale boom, the San Diego Cuyamaca & Eastern Railroad ran as many as eight passenger and four freight cars a day in and out of the valley.

Okay, that wasn't funny

by Rev. James L. Snyder

Let me make it very clear right up front that I am in favor of as many "ha ha moments" as possible. I could not get through a week without my daily dose. I firmly believe that laughter is the appropriate medicine for the soul. Some people, according to their demeanor, need a little more laughter than they are presently getting.

That said, let me quickly point out that some things are not funny.

Of course, most this in my life and about my person are marvelous targets of humor. I do not take myself very seriously. I am not sure any wise person would take me seriously either. In fact, I would highly suspect a person who took me seriously. I can take a joke as well as the next person and I can give it back as well as the next person.

I have had some weeks that if it was not for a little bit of humor I do not know how I would have gotten through. So, if you can't do anything you can at least laugh. I firmly believe that the best laugh is when you can laugh at yourself. You might as well laugh at yourself, everybody else is.

Then, there are those serious moments in life that beg for no laughing. I would recommend that warning signs are put around these areas reading, "Positively No Laughing Zone." With this sign should come a severe penalty for those who violate it.

That said; let me explain an area in my life where the sign should be permanently erected.

The Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage and I were having supper with another couple. We try to do this at least once a month and keep up with each other's progress or lack thereof.

We were having a great meal and as we came to the end, I stopped the waitress and said, "I would like some ice cream for dessert." As far as I am concerned, that is a rather reasonable request and quite in keeping with the environment I was in.

"What kind of ice cream," she queried, "would you like?"

When it comes to ice cream, ice cream is simply ice cream to me. If there is a flavor of ice cream I do not like, it has yet to be invented. I love ice cream. My favorite song is, "I scream, you scream, we all scream for ice cream." In my date book, there is no better ending to a wonderful meal than ice cream.

I remember my grandfather's favorite ice cream was vanilla. He would not eat any other ice cream; he thought they were polluting it with colors. To him an ice cream sundae was as close to blasphemy as he ever would get. "Why ruin," he objected, "the ice cream with all that slop?" He wanted nothing coming between him and the purest experience of ice cream he could get.

Me, I love ice cream regardless of the flavor or color or "slop."

I looked at the waitress and simply said, "I don't care what flavor you bring me. Surprise me. As long as it isn't broccoli." That was supposed to be a joke. Ha ha ha.

As the waitress left our table, we resumed our conversation and shortly she returned with the ice cream.

Upon her arrival, I looked at her and then the ice cream she was bringing and almost screamed aloud. Of all the blasphemous things to do to a customer, this has to take the cake.

First, she had an ice cream bowl with three scoops of ice cream, vanilla, strawberry and chocolate. No problem. However, on the side of the dish in plain view for everybody to see, especially me, was a piece of broccoli. Broccoli! The forbidden fruit or whatever it is.

My dining companions thought this was the funniest thing they had ever seen. Particularly, the dining companion that was going to come home with me that night.

Not only did they laugh. The waitress laughed. The table next to us began to laugh. The table next to them began to laugh. It was not long before everybody within 173 miles was laughing at my ice cream/broccoli dessert.

Actually, not everybody was laughing. I was not laughing. Broccoli, no matter the presentation, is no laughing matter in my book.

If matters could not be worse, my wife, through her hilarity spasms, reached over, picked up the broccoli and began eating it in my presence. Talk about adding insult to injury, my injury was vastly insulted.

I may have been smiling on the outside, but I assure you I was more than frowning on the inside. Some things are funny; broccoli is not one of those things.

Driving home amid the muffled chuckles on the other side of the front seat, I thought of

Dear Dr. Luauna — What is your life?

Dear Readers,

The New Year just started, let's think about a few things to help through this year. In James 4:14; Whereas you do not know what will happen tomorrow. For what is your life? It is even a vapor that appears for a little time and then vanishes away. A powerful question we need to ask ourselves.

Not how is your life? But, what is your life? This question is answered only by each person alone. You will never face a more powerful question than this. James didn't say, "What is life?" If it did, nobody has an answer.

Three main questions come up in life; where did I come from? Why I am I here? Where do I go from here?

Many people say, "Life isn't fair!" Some say, "Life is feast!" Another man says, "Life is a fast!" Another man says, "Life is a paradise." Another man says, "Life is like a prison"

This question is very pointed, maybe very personal, or even very painful. Maybe you can answer the question, what is your life? Is it a failure? Is it a success? Is it a disappointment? The Word of God tells us and is showing us what our life is. Our life is like a vapor. It is like the steam that comes off the teapot. You try to get a handful, and it's gone! Throughout the Word of God we see different descriptions of life, as to something very swift. The Apostle Paul says our life is like a tent, for a night, and then packed up and gone! Isaiah likens our life to the grass. Isaiah 40:7; the grass withers, the flower fades, because the breath of the Lord blows upon it; Surely the people are grass. I Peter 1:24; "All flesh is as grass, and all the glory of man as the flower of the grass. The grass withers, and its flower falls away. The Word of God, the Bible is about LIFE!

I read about a group of so called "Supermen" before World War I, they were called Fabian Socialists. They were known as "Top notch guys" They decided Christianity was not working well. They decided, we don't like church, we don't need the Bible. They thought they could have a new race of men. They didn't talk about repentance or sin. They thought they had a plan to empty all prisons and make all men equal. They said man has a need for materialism, a greed for progress, they marched with their cards, banners and proclaiming the world will be great utopia.

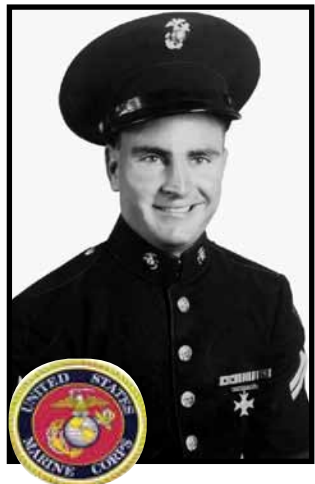

Yet, man in all of his own strength and his wisdom, we have more war, sickness and sin; more broken homes and more broken lives. A world lost in sin. You know what we learn from history? We don't learn from history! If we did learn from history, we would not be in the mess we are in today.

Man does have a blank inside of him, the one place for man to get life. Jesus said, "Come to me, that you may have life." John 10:10; I have come that you may have life, and have life more abundantly. Jesus said, "I am the way the truth, and the life." I am the Way: Without that there is no going. I am the Truth; without that there is no knowing. I am the Life; without that there is no growing.

John 6:35; And Jesus said to them, "I am the Bread of Life, "He who comes to me shall never hunger, and he who believes in me shall never thirst." ## In Loving Memory

Nicholson, Floyd Wayne
(Nick) August 7, 1925 to December 18, 2012

Floyd Nicholson passed away from natural causes. His life was celebrated at Hemet Valley Baptist Church on December 26, 2012 followed by a military Memorial Honor service at Riverside National Cemetery.

Nicholson was born in Frederick, Oklahoma and raised on a farm by his parents Thomas and Cora along with his brothers and sisters Cleo, Buford, Paul, Juanita and Mildred who all preceded him in death. His grandfather, Joseph D. Nicholson, born in England and settled in Texas, staked out 480 acres during the Oklahoma land rush.

Nicholson left farm life to enlist at 17 in the USMC. He married his wife Dorothy Fowler in 1945 before heading off to fight in WWII at Guadalcanal. Nicholson fought with the Ninth Defense Battalion as a machine gunner on several of the Solomon Islands. He served on many military bases across America working in data processing and records. He went to work with the Civil Service at Camp Pendleton, CA after retiring from the USMC in 1969 as a Gunnery Sgt.

In 2009 Nicholson was interviewed for the Library of Congress Veteran's History Project. In 2011 Nicholson's Service Tile was added to the Alpine (CA) Veteran's Wall of Honor, and he was a participant in the Alpine Veteran's Parade that same year.

Raised as a man of faith, Nicholson devoted his life to serving God along with serving his country. In his memoir From Guadalcanal to Hemet, he said, "To this day I have led my life and guided my family to live by God's word. It has and always will be the most significant decision I ever made in life."

In his 22 years of military service he also worked with the So. Baptist Service Corps to help build churches and served as a Deacon, Sunday School Teacher, and Sunday school Superintendent across America. He also did outreach with the Billy Graham Crusade.

Nicholson adored his wife of 59 years, his children and cherished his time with his grandchildren. He is survived by his daughter, Diana Saenger and husband Lou; son, Darrell Nicholson and wife Jan; grandchildren, Kenneth Radcliffe II, and wife Kim, Amber Pleiss, Crystal Radcliffe; and great grandchildren Kenneth Radcliffe III, Justin Pleiss, and Ashley Pleiss. His presence, love and lovely smile will be missed by all.

For Health's Sake

This new year, resolve to get more sleep

There are many popular New Year's resolutions that quickly come and go: eating healthy, losing weight, managing stress and saving money. In 2013, why not focus on one health change you'll enjoy sticking to... getting more sleep.

According to the National Sleep Foundation, the average American sleeps about six hours and 55 minutes per night during the week, and 15 percent of adults sleep less than six hours per night.

"Lack of sleep can take a significant toll on your overall health and interfere with some of your daily activities," said Dr. Michael Thorpy, director of the Sleep-Wake Disorders Center at the Montefiore Medical Center in New York.

Almost everybody has trouble sleeping now and then, but many Americans experience significant problems getting to sleep or continually wake up in the middle of the night and can't fall back asleep.

Such problems may be clinical symptoms of insomnia. According to the National Sleep Foundation, if you have trouble falling asleep at night or staying asleep, or you wake up in the morning feeling unrefreshed, you may be suffering from insomnia.

Insomnia can affect people in different ways. Some sufferers have trouble initially getting to sleep, while others wake up in the middle of the night and have difficulty falling back asleep.

To help you get better sleep this year, Dr. Thorpy suggests these simple tips:

- Set and stick to a sleep schedule. Establish a regular bedtime and wake time.
- Set aside time at night to "wind down." Spend some quiet time before bedtime. Such activities as watching TV, using the computer or working right before bedtime, or in the bedroom, can make it harder to fall asleep.
- Avoid caffeine and alcohol before bed.
- Exercise regularly. Just don't exercise rigorously near bedtime and check with your doctor before starting an exercise regimen.

• Don't clock-watch. If you awaken in the middle of the night and stay in bed, don't lie there staring at the clock. And don't watch TV or use your laptop or cell phone, because these technologies stimulate the brain, making it tougher to fall back to sleep.

If these tips don't help, speak with your healthcare professional to help determine if you are suffering from insomnia and require treatment.

More information regarding insomnia is available at the National Sleep Foundation website at www.sleepfoundation.org.

'The Impossible' — a profound and touching take on a true event

Review by Diana Saenger

There have been many natural disasters in the past years and with the immediacy of the media we get repetitious images of damage, horrific loss of life and properties. While our hearts grieve for losses it's rare we get to follow one family through such an experience from beginning to end. That's what happens in The Impossible, a film about the Indian Ocean tsunami of 2004 that appears to be yet another rip-off of a natural disaster but becomes so much more as it recounts the true story of a family who experienced this horrific event.

When Henry (Ewan McGregor), Maria (Naomi Watts)

and their three sons head to Thailand to celebrate Christmas they're prepared for an exciting time at a resort on the beach. Awakening up to Christmas presents is fun, and the beautiful floating luminaria at the welcome party that night is awesome. However, the boys are anxious to enjoy some rigorous activities. The very next day as Henry, Lucas (Tom Holland), Thomas (Samuel Joslin) and Simon (Oaklee Pendergast) head to the pools only minutes later a load roar is heard. Outside their room Maria watches as a strong wind picks up and suddenly a massive tsunami that hits as quick as a tornado, turns the resort and miles beyond into massive wreckage with only few survivors fighting for their lives.

Sitting in a movie theatre no one can be prepared for the scenes that immediately follow the huge waves hitting land. The transformation from sitting and watching a movie to actually feeling as if one is a part of that chaos is due to the filmmakers' immense concern and skills. Director Juan Antonio Bayona (The Orphanage) takes the brilliant screenplay by Sergio G. Sánchez (The Orphanage) — from story by Maria Belon — and creates a nearly two hour on-the-edge-of-your-seat drama. Adding more emotional realism to the film is a wonderful music score by Fernando Velazquez, and the unbelievable cinematography of Oscar Faura (Biutiful).

But it's the six special effects companies, special effects masters Félix Bergés and Pau Costa and production designer Eugenio Caballero that create something akin to a horror movie. Maria is the first of the family seen tumbling above and below the water as she's hit full force with debris and trying to find something to cling to.

Maria is almost unbelieving when she sees Lucas in the same water nearby. They must struggle to get to each other but there's many a tear shed by moviegoers when they cling to each other and Lucas sobs in his mother's arms. Only days before he was the one who impressed his mother during the airplane turbulence as the brave one.

Lucas must become the fearless one once again as he discovers his mother is severely hurt in many places. When they are finally rescued and put on a truck to head inland, Maria can only scan the wreckage-filled waters and wonder if her boys and husband are alive. Maria and Lucas end up at a hospital with her barley hanging on to life.

The cast for this film — although not Hispanic as the real family — do an incredible job. Every moment Watts is on screen she epitomizes the angst of a mother who must encourage her son to help others even knowing she is near death, and the agony of not knowing if her other two sons and husband are alive. Her pain is so clear we can feel it.

Tom Holland, who did a voice in The Secret World of Arrietty, makes an impressive debut in his first feature film. As the 12-year-old Lucas he carries the worries of an adult on his shoulder about the existence of his parents and what happened to his little brothers. So consumed by fear and isolation in a foreign country, at one time when his mother talks about Thomas and Simon he screams at her that they are dead. Young Holland has a long film career ahead of him.

Experiencing the rest of the film is better seen than hearing about. McGregor is excellent as an attentive father, and Joslin and Pendergast — make incredible film debuts as the two younger boys. One scene alone will break hearts. Among all the new films currently in theaters The Impossible is the most profound. It's a heartfelt film that hits viewers hard but leaves unforgettable images in our minds and on our hearts.

'Zero Dark Thirty' — several potential Oscar noms possible

Review by James Colt Harrison

Most of us are governed by the notion that military adventures should be a matter of public policy. Some secrecy is needed if missions are to be accomplished without being compromised beforehand. However, if it is a "mission accomplished," then perhaps the public can be let in on how it might have been done. Such is the case with Zero Dark Thirty, from director Kathryn Bigelow.

Bigelow won an Oscar® for her last film The Hurt Locker, which told tales of how our military de-fuses road bombs in Afghanistan. Bigelow used tension and uncertainty about how things would turn out to produce a taught, exciting film starring Jeremy Renner. In that film, we did not know what would happen or how things would be resolved.

With Zero Dark Thirty, it's a different case, entirely, because we know the ending already. What we did not know was that President Obama had given the go-ahead order for our special Navy S.E.A.L. Team 6 to go on a secret mission to take-out world criminal Osama Bin Laden, the brains behind the 9/11 attack on the United States. Bin Laden had been on the lam for more than a decade, and no previous administrations seemed to be able to capture or silence him.

Jessica Chastain plays a special CIA operative agent whose chief goal is to manage a raid against Bin Laden at his so-called secret compound in Pakistan. Since the house was a mere stone's throw down the road from a Pakistani military base, it's highly unlikely that nobody knew Bin Laden was there. Fortunately, we found out its location and Chastain's group began a campaign on how to capture or kill the Al Qaeda leader. She had worked on finding Bin Laden for more than a decade.

They had to work from the outside in. They began interrogating lesser people around Bin Laden, got to know his special couriers, and were not above using water torture or other means of persuasion. These questionable methods of torture are not unknown and most countries use a form of torture to squeeze information out of likely candidates. Chastain retains her cool while

by Richard Salts

The Baylor Bears thoroughly dismantled the UCLA Bruins 49-26 at QUALCOMM stadium on Thursday night in the 35th Bridgeport Education Holiday Bowl before an announced crowd of 55,507.

In a game that was never close, Baylor took a 21-0 lead early into the second quarter and never looked back. UCLA dug an early hole with a couple of third down penalties that helped to extend Baylor scoring drives and living up to their reputation as college football's most penalized team.

Baylor quarterback Nick Florence, replacing Washington Redskins Robert Griffin III as the team's field general, had 10-13 passing for 188 yards, and two touchdowns, passing GIII as the school's all-time passing leader.

Not to be outdone, UCLA quarterback Brett Hundley set his school's single season passing mark going 26-50 for 329 yards and three TD's. He was forced to play catch up all night as the team abandoned the rushing game.

Baylor's defense – ranked 117 in the nation for points allowed – allowed just 34 yards (and 26 points) rushing to Johnathan Franklin, UCLA's all-time leading rusher. UCLA averaged 202.9 yards rushing coming into the game and achieved only 33 this night as the Baylor defensive front controlled the line of scrimmage most of the night. Coming into the game as the nation's worst third down defense, UCLA converted only one of 17 third down attempts, demoralizing the team in the process.

The Baylor offense operated at a fast pace all night, dictating an inadaptible tempo for UCLA. Baylor's Lache Seastrunk rushed for 138 yards and one TD. Teammate Martin Glasco rushed for 98 yards and three TD's.

The season ended on a low note for Coach Jim Mora as UCLA lost their final three games to fall just short of a 10-win season. Coach Art Briles and his squad finished with four impressive victories, giving the coach his first bowl win in five attempts.

As Baylor's Twitter feed on Thursday night stated; "We compete. We win. We are Baylor. Bragging Rights!!!!!!"

Chargers cling to 24-21 win over Raiders

Plans ensue for new era in Chargers football. Smith, Turner will not return in '13. See Chargers.com for full interview. Photo courtesy San Diego Chargers

by Chuck Karaszia

Week 17, the last game of the NFL regular season, pitted two familiar rivals – the Oakland Raiders and the San Diego Chargers – against each other. Both teams were out of the playoff picture but played this game for pride, their standing positions, and in the Chargers' case for Head Coach Norv Turner after rumors of his release at seasons end.

With rain in the forecast, an undeterred crowd packed Qualcomm Stadium. Usually the bright and sunny America's Finest City turned into America's wettest city as a deluge of rain poured onto the field. Not only was the hailstorm and pelting ice abnormal, but so were the stand that were not 50 percent filled with Raiders fans.

Good drainage allowed no puddles to collect on a field but it progressively got worse from the mixture of rain and cleats eventually making a mud bath bowl.

Igniting the Chargers by bouncing outside after a little fake shimmer, returning the opening kickoff 99-yards in 12 seconds, Chargers receiver/return specialist Michael Spurlock is making a name for himself. The former pre-season castoff spent time with the Jacksonville Jaguars this season before returning to San Diego. Spurlock also ran a punt back for a score the previous week.

Ironically, Spurlock also saved the game Sunday when he pounced on an on-sides kick with less than two minutes left in the game, ending a potential Raiders rally attempt to tie or win the game.

When given time to throw, Chargers quarterback Philip Rivers is as good as any quarterback in the league. He very efficiently managed the Chargers offense completing 13-of-17 passes for 151 yards, two touchdowns, no interceptions, wearing gloves for the third consecutive week. Rivers finished the game with a quarterback rating of 142.0. In his five consecutive seasons as the Chargers starting quarterback, Rivers has thrown at least 25 touchdowns each season, tying him with just five other NFL quarterbacks holding that record.

Eddie Royal had a breakout game for the Chargers with four receptions for 61-yards. Antonio Gates caught two passes, one, an 11-yard touchdown in the second quarter, adding to his illustrious record total for most touchdown receptions in team history.

Running the ball by committee last week without the services of their number one pick from Fresno State (Ryan Mathews - broken clavicle), Battle, Brown, and Brinkley ran well enough to keep the Raiders off balance. Bolts safety Eric Weddle also gained six yards on a successful fake punt (second this season).

Although giving up two fourth quarter touchdowns against the Raiders, the Chargers defense has played well all season long. The young front line and Eric Weddle as safety makes this unit the biggest positive for the team this season. Chargers cornerback Quentin Jammer had his third interception of the season in the third quarter. Although long in tooth, the veteran hopes to return next season.

In reality the Chargers season was over after the loss to Carolina but the team never quit, playing extremely well beating Pittsburgh and the Jets on the road, then the Raiders at home.

Finishing the season (7-9) the Chargers will own the number 11 pick in the upcoming NFL draft. As the Chargers' season ended, so did the tenure of their Head Coach Norv Turner and General Manager A.J. Smith who were released as expected by team President Dean Spanos the day after the last game of the season.

DID YOU KNOW?

January is National Volunteer Blood Donor Month

No matter what your financial situation is like, there's one way you can give back to your community that won't cost you a penny.

According to the American Red Cross, more than 44,000 blood donations are needed daily. While it's always the right time to give blood, January is National Volunteer Blood Donor Month, a great reminder to make an appointment.

As the new year begins, consider making regular blood donations a part of your 2013 schedule.

One donation can help save the lives of up to three people. To find out where you can give blood and to schedule your appointment, go to www.redcrossblood.org or call 1-800-RED CROSS.

Zero Dark Thirty ...

watching tough guy Jason Clarke, an Australian actor, do the dirty work. You get the feeling she is dedicated to her work, and no amount of torture of the enemy is going to sway her off her course to complete the task. Clarke is effective in his tasks and makes a perfect interrogator with no scruples.

Screenwriter Mark Boal collaborated with Bigelow on Hurt Locker and collected two Oscars® for writing and producing that film. He, himself, had been one of those hard-scrub journalists who embedded themselves with the troops to get a good story. If anybody would know and understand the military it would be Boal. He played a cat and mouse game with the CIA to glean some information on a proposed Bin Laden film that was highly different from the finished product we now see on screen. While Boal was preparing for the former screenplay, Bin Laden was killed. This caused a major turn in the direction of their proposed Bin Laden film.

Now that they had a definite ending to the story, Bigelow and Boal shifted gears and re-booted the script. The story had become hot property again.

Much as we knew the ending to Titanic, knowing the final ending of Bin Laden does not deter from the exciting climax in the last hour or so of the film. Bigelow used night vision lenses and natural light for the scenes of the final raid. It lends an authenticity to the film that might not have been captured using real lighting and bright colors. These last scenes are spectacular in their realism, and the tension can be cut with a knife. Film editors Dylan Tichenor, who cut most of the agency scenes, and William Goldenberg assembled the raid scenes, contributed to the swift, exciting look of the film. They both should be on Oscars® list of nominees this year.

Bigelow has emerged as one of America's most exciting new female directors, even though she has been around Hollywood for decades and mostly unacknowledged. But the studios are now taking a good look at her work and like what they see. So do we.

How to make your home pet-friendly

Whether you're a new dog owner or you and your pooch have been best pals for years, there's always room to make your home more pet friendly. Doing so will not only keep your dog safer and happier, but can also help protect your belongings and furniture from canine destruction.

"Your dog is a member of the family," says Dale Ryan, an animal photographer and author of the new book "Sleeping With the Beast," an intimate look at the canine-human relationship and the increasing role dogs play in our lives and homes. "Just as you would take steps to child-proof your home, so too should you make the same concessions for your dog."

Ryan points out that by taking a few simple steps, you can improve your dog's home life and your pet ownership experience:

- Be sure proper fencing is installed around your yard.
- When not at home, confine dogs to a certain area of the house to ensure their safety. A first-floor room is preferable in the event of emergency, such as fire.

- Avoid installing wall-to-wall carpet in public areas of the house. Because of traffic flow, wood, stone, or tile floors with area rugs are better alternatives.

- When it comes to furniture, consider material that's easy to clean and can withstand some abuse. Dogs may enjoy mashing stuffing in pillows into comfortable shapes. For sensitive dogs, opt for hypoallergenic stuffing.

- Dogs have a tendency to rub against walls. Delicate papers can easily become damaged. Opt for paint over wall paper. It's washable and less costly.

- Consult your veterinarian about nutrition. Cooking for dogs with lean meat, poultry and fish can keep them healthier. Grain-free treats and a raw food diet also work well.

- Stainless steel bowls inside a stone trough container will keep water from spilling all over the floor. For a feeding bowl, use white buffalo China -- it's heavy and there's never food residue left behind.

- If your dog likes to sleep in bed with you but is too old or small to make the jump from floor to bed, consider library steps.

- Don't forgo a duvet just because you have dogs. Place a heavy flannel sheet, which won't shift like satin or cotton, over the duvet for your dog to sleep on. On your master bed use flannel sheets and pillowcases to keep bed linens clean.

- Dog beds should be hypoallergenic and covered in cotton, which is easy to wash. If you have wooden floors, the bottom of the bed should be ultra-suede fabric; so floors won't be scuffed or scratched. Avoid wicker baskets because they can scratch your floor and your dogs may be tempted to chew them.

More information about Ryan's new book can be found online at www.sleepingwiththebeast.net.

Remember, dog ownership is a big responsibility. But pet-proofing your home can make the experience a more rewarding one for both you and your four-legged companion.
