Viejas Outlets kicks off the Holiday Season with the opening of Southern California's largest outdoor ice rink

Viejas Outlets officially kicked off the holiday season with the Grand Opening of Southern California's largest outdoor ice rink, and the launch of special late-night store hours.

The location of the Viejas Outlets ice rink is perfect for the holidays, nestled in the foothills east of San Diego at an elevation of about 2,500 feet. "Our elevation provides a combination of mild temperatures with a bit of a nip in the air, which makes for great skating conditions and a wonderful holiday feel for shoppers," says Viejas Outlets General Manager Peter Cortese.

The Viejas Outlets ice rink, which is larger than the world-famous Rockefeller Square rink, has quickly grown to become one the most popular holiday traditions in Southern California, with more than 33,000 visitors lacing up their skates on the nearly 10,000 square foot rink last season. November hours are Monday-Friday 5 p.m. to 10 p.m. and Saturday-Sunday noon to 10 p.m., with reduced pricing for groups, seniors and military.

lion in federal Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) Funds and $420,000 in HOME Investment Partnerships (HOME) Funds each year for housing and community development projects. The City invites the public to have input in how the City programs this money over the next five years.

The responses will be tabulated, evaluated and reported in the strategic planning document known as the Five-Year Consolidated Plan to be adopted in 2014 by the El Cajon City Council. Your responses will be used to help the City determine what the priorities will be for allocating the federal grant money over the five-year period from Fiscal Year 2014-15 to 2019-20.

The public can access the survey between now and Nov. 29, at:

La Mesa citizens group to file Term Limits Ordinance

The La Mesa Term Limits Committee filed the paperwork to get voter approval for an ordinance to limit city officials to twelve consecutive years in office. The group needs to collect 3,306 valid signatures in 180 days to place the measure on the November 2014 ballot.

Vice Mayor Kristine Alessio recently tried to get the City Council to put the ordinance on the ballot, but only Councilmember Ruth Sterling supported her motion. Alessio said, "If the Council won't do its job, the people will get it done. That's the essence of our democracy."

The La Mesa Citizen Oversight Group first suggested the idea last spring. One of its members, local merchant Bill Jaynes, commented, "Term limits remind politicians that they represent the public, and not themselves."

Bill Baber, a local election law attorney, explained that the proposed ordinance limits a person to three consecutive terms as either Mayor or City Councilmember or any combination thereof. Baber added,

"This is a balanced approach. It's modeled after the term limits law passed by voters in 2012 for the State Legislature, but it replaces the lifetime ban with a cooling off period."

Under the proposed ordinance, a person who serves three consecutive terms in office must wait four years before returning to office. Book store owner Craig Maxwell said, "Requiring a politician to spend four years out of office among the people is pretty reasonable. When they return to normal civilian life, they get the opportunity to consider the long term effects of the rules they impose on the rest of us."

The La Mesa Term Limits Committee is a city ballot measure committee. The committee files campaign finance forms at the La Mesa City Clerk's office.

Library Contest yields Big Win for Alpine 10-year-old

Ryley and her mom Amy Gorence

When Amy Gorence saw an email in her inbox from Scholarshare, she didn't open it because she assumed it was advertising. It turns out she overlooked a notification that her daughter, Ryley, had won a scholarship for $529 through a contest, "Reading Makes Cent$," at the Alpine Library. Luckily, the folks with California's official 529 College Savings Plan didn't give up too easily. A few weeks later, Amy got a phone call asking if Ryley was still interested. "Interested in what?" she asked. The answer was a big surprise: Ryley's name was chosen, out of all the entries from the San Diego County Library system, to receive $529 in a tax-advantaged savings plan for her college education! As if this weren't enough good news, there's more: the Alpine Library will receive matching funds—another $529—to spend on materials!

At age 10, Ryley doesn't know yet what she wants to study in college, or which school she'd like to attend. In the meantime, the funds will earn interest until she's older. We are very grateful that Ryley took the time to fill out a card at the Alpine Library, and enter the contest. Reading definitely Makes Cent$ - and Dollar$!!

Star/Pal training camp

On Nov. 12, 101 students from Lindo Park Elementary School and 120 students from Tierra Del Sol Middle School attended a Star/Pal training camp with representatives from the San Diego Chargers at the TDS Campus.

The event was sponsored by Star/Pal, originally two separate entities. The San Diego Pal Chapter which was founded in 1998 and primarily served county areas. Star organizations came into existence in 1993 to focus its efforts within the city. The two organizations merged in 1998.

Officer Edwin Garrette with the San Diego Police Department said everyone among the All Star/Pal programs, directors, law enforcement officers, probation officers, sheriffs and the Chargers are donating their time. They want to work with the kids to install values of sportsmanship, respect and academic success, so when challenges arise they will be prepared. Star/Pal brings together the youth and law enforcement in a fun setting to build a healthy relationship.

Everyone was laughing and smiling as they caught footballs and ran an obstacle course. Everyone was a winner! There was T-shirt give away, snacks and drinks for all.

Lindo Park Principal and event organizer Nina Drammissi and TDS Principal Scott Goergens agreed this is a fun and safe way for kids to learn. The police and sheriffs want them to succeed. Principal Drammissi spoke to Edwin Garrette about the possibility for a spring Padre Group.

For Health's Sake

Posture — the missing link

To some extent, beauty is in the eye of the beholder, but the things we consider beautiful usually share certain characteristics, with symmetry and vitality being chief among them, says CEO Bill Schultz.

"The human body is an excellent example," says Schultz, president of posture innovator AlignMed, www.alignmed.com, and recent recipient of a special Congressional Recognition certificate for his contributions. "The people we view as physically attractive are usually healthy and symmetrical in appearance. That's not a coincidence; postural symmetry and good health go hand in hand."

Good posture — holding the head, shoulders and trunk in perfect alignment — creates balance, which allows our many physiological systems to function optimally, Schultz says. When we habitually sit, stand or walk in a less than a fully aligned position, muscles stretch or contract to accommodate. This can result in chronic imbalances that can lead to pain. Studies dating back to the 19th century also suggest our posture affects mood, energy and self-confidence, all of which affect how attractive we appear to others.

"You don't see supermodels, A-list actors or the rest of the 'beautiful people' slouched over as they strut down the runway or red carpet," Schultz notes.

"Think about the importance of posture among the most challenging sports; for track runners, ballerinas and gymnasts, optimal posture is essential," says Schultz, who explores four ways in which posture is part of the beauty-health connection.

- It's not just sitting for hours on end that's bad for you; it's how one sits. The dangers of sitting have garnered plenty of attention in recent years, especially since we have become a society of sitters. Sitting for long periods comes with many health risks, including obesity and cardiovascular disease. But sitting with less than perfect posture — most frequently, sitting with the head and should in a forward position over a desk — can cause significant neck pain, which involves muscles and nerves from the neck down. Proper posture can prevent neck and spinal damage.

- More than 116 million Americans, or a third of the population, suffer from chronic pain at some point in their lives. That's according to a recent report from the Institute of Medicine. Chronic pain means that a sufferer has anywhere from 30 to 60 days of lasting pain, and this massive problem is estimated to cost Americans $635 billion dollars. For many, treatment and/or prevention is out of reach, however, a reliable and easy way to prevent chronic pain is to maintain good posture.

- A strong, well-functioning core is crucial for training and optimal health. The bulk of a body's mass is located at and around one's core, including the trunk and pelvis region. Today's fitness fanatics firmly grasp the importance of a healthy core. Surprisingly, however, much of the health-conscious population today is muscle-centric and does not fully appreciate the importance of posture, even though proper posture facilitates core strengthening, especially while exercising.

- Using passive therapy to continuously improve posture. To feel and look your best, it's important to maintain good posture throughout the day, but that's difficult, especially for sedentary people. Neurologists at Rush University Medical Center say passive therapy can be even more effective than active therapy. Posture-enhancing apparel such as MyLign by AlignMed, worn by professional athletes including NBA player Dwight Howard, offer neurologic biofeedback that constantly remind the skeleton and muscles to self-correct. AlignMed founder Shultz says the shirts are not compression shirts, which squeeze the body and are primarily worn for aesthetics. "The shirts map muscles in the same way kinesio tape — used to reduce inflammation, relax muscles and enhance performance — assists world-class athletes," he says.

Bill Schultz is the president and founder of AlignMed, the evidence-based apparel company that offers the Align Posture range of products (Postureshirt, MyLign and S3) used by many of today's top professional athletes, including Houston Rockets center Dwight Howard. Schultz recently received a Certificate of Special Congressional Recognition for "outstanding and invaluable service" through AlignMed. The company is home of the breakthrough alignment/posture shirt that is designed to map the muscle of the wearer's torso and posterior region, which gently yet continually aligns the body. The shirts can be worn 24/7 and are appropriate for all manner of physical activity — or inactivity, including sleeping.

LAUGHTER IS THE BEST MEDICINE

Children

Cleaning your house while your kids are still growing up is like shoveling the walk before it stops snowing.

I want my children to have all the things I couldn't afford. Then I want to move in with them.

Most children threaten at times to run away from home. This is the only thing that keeps some parents going.

We spend the first 12 months of our children's lives teaching them to walk and talk and the next 12 telling them to sit down and shut up.

Tranquilizers work only if you follow the advice on the bottle — keep away from children.

A smile is a curve that sets everything straight.

Inspiration

Let the holiday season begin

by Dr. Rev. James L. Snyder

This is the time of the year holidays get into full steam. It begins with Halloween when people put on a scary face and ends with New Year's day when people put on a new face. I could never figure out if the Halloween face was the New Year's Day face just that much older.

I do not have much time for Halloween. Since the Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage has put me on a strict diet that does not include candy, what is the purpose of going out on Halloween night begging for candy?

It seems rather interesting that our holiday season starts out with people going around door-to-door begging for candy and ends New Year's Day making resolutions not to eat any more candy this year.

I love all of the ingredients making up our holiday season whether it is Halloween candy or Thanksgiving turkey or New Year's Day pork and sauerkraut. These traditions that center on eating is right up my alley. If the alley is dark enough, my wife will not catch me in the act.

One ingredient I really do not appreciate during the holiday season are all the grouches and complainers and sourpuss people that insist on trying to take the fun out of my holiday time.

On the one hand, you have those who pretend they do not believe in God and yet during this time of the year they get all bent out of shape by the mere mention of God. They nervously say they do not believe in God and yet my belief in God threatens them somehow.

If they really did not believe in God they would not care one way or the other if somebody was stupid enough to believe in God. They would just sit back in their rocking chair smiling at the poor fools who go through the holiday season thanking God and celebrating the birth of Jesus on Christmas day.

For instance, I do not believe in the tooth fairy. I think it is the figment of someone's imagination and nothing exists that in any way resembles the tooth fairy. Yet, that is not the center of my life going around trying to prove there is no such thing as a tooth fairy. How do you explain to a child the money under his pillow after placing his extracted tooth?

Perhaps another illustration would be Halloween. I do not believe in ghosts, goblins and all of the stupidity invested in this kind of a holiday. Yet, my whole life is not focused around trying to disprove ghosts and goblins. If somebody wants to believe in ghosts and goblins, what is that to me?

I do not believe there was ever such a creature as Rudolph the red nose reindeer. Somebody made that up to go along with the Christmas story. I do not think Santa Claus ever existed. Not all the stories I have read about Santa Claus has ever convinced me such a person existed.

Yet, I do not spend the whole holiday season ranting and raving trying to disprove Rudolph the red nose reindeer and his master St. Nicholas. If somebody wants to believe in Santa Claus and his reindeer and that Rudolph the red nose reindeer saved Christmas one year, what is that to me? I say let people indulge in these marvelous little fantasies.

I cannot tell you how many years I sat on Santa Claus's lap and to this day, nothing I asked for has ever come my way via Christmas. Yet, this Christmas I will take my grandchildren to the mall and have them sit on Santa Claus's lap and tell him what they want for Christmas.

Believing in the mall Santa Claus is pure fantasy.

Yet, I am not going to picket the mall around Christmas time demanding they do away with the mall Santa Claus. After all, Santa Claus in the mall brings customers to the mall.

Many fantasies I do not put any trust in, but I do not build my life around destroying these fantasies other people enjoy.

I do not recall how old I was when I found out that Santa Claus was just a fictional character that made Christmas something of a fantasy. Even though I discovered that Santa Claus was not real I found myself as a father telling the Santa Claus story to my children and then later to my grandchildren.

Some of these people attacking the holiday season, including the Christmas tree, are just indicating that somewhere along the line they have not grown up. If they do not believe in the holiday season, particularly Christmas, then let us who love the holiday season, especially Christmas, enjoy it.

I advise those who do not enjoy the holiday season to go up to Western Pennsylvania, find Punxsutawney Phil and spend the winter with him. We will be sure to look for you come spring.

I like how the apostle Paul put it. "When I was a child, I spake as a child, I understood as a child, I thought as a child: but when I became a man, I put away childish things" (1 Corinthians 13:10).

Some people, I am not mentioning who, needs to just grow up and stop acting so childish.

I will celebrate the holiday season for the simple reason that God's amazing grace has brought me through another year.

Dear Dr. Luauna — The War Hero (pt 2)

Dear Readers,

I said, "I am going to sing you a song." I sang, "Amazing Grace," "The Our Father," and then "Amazing Grace" again. Something was happening in his heart. After I finished singing, I noticed tears rolling down his face. I reached for his hand and said, "Sir, it's time to receive Jesus, can I please pray with you?" He looked me right in the eye, and with a small smile he said, "Yes." I gently asked him to please say the prayer with me. That day he received Jesus as his Lord and Savior, and asked to be forgiven of his sins. As I finished praying, I noticed his wife was standing in the hallway; tears of joy were streaming down her face. She heard him, her husband, and the one she loved and was married to for 40 years say a prayer for the first time.

I smiled, looked into his eyes, reached for his hand and said, "Sir, you made my day, and I want to thank you for serving our country." He smiled, looked at his wife, she came and gave him a hug. I said, "Sir, you are just a little bit too tall and heavy for me to pick up and baptize you. But I think God will understand if I just sprinkle a little water on your head, for your baptism as a sign of your commitment to Jesus." He was baptized the same day. A few days went by when I received a phone call, the amazing hero died. They wanted me to know he went to be with Jesus. I thanked God for His love and grace, to save this man, how our Heavenly Father honored the prayer of his wife.

January was setting in and it was really cold outside. It was a few weeks after the funeral, and I was walking at the Prayer Mountain, when I heard that same voice again. As I looked up it was the wife, she again waved her hands, "Wait, I need to talk to you." As she got closer, I noticed a towel over her arm. She asked, "Would you please baptize me in the Prayer Mountain pool?" I just looked at her, I said, "Ma'am, it's really cold water, and it's not a heated pool, the temperature is about 30 degrees. She smiled, "Please baptize me, Dr. Luauna." I asked her if she wanted to wait until it warmed up a bit. "No, I need to be baptized today if you will please do this for me."

I knew the water was cold, but her smile, deep love and compassion for Jesus touched my heart. I said, "Ok, let me go change my clothes." I told her, "We are both going to freeze," I smiled, "I'll meet you by the pool." I went into my office, wow! What did I see, my winter bicycle clothes. I lifted up my hands and shouted thank you Jesus! Even with these clothes I knew it would still be cold, but my cycling clothes were tight to my body so maybe I wouldn't feel the freezing water as much. Walking to the pool, she smiled, she looked so excited, I asked her, "Are you sure, it's really cold?" She smiled from ear to ear, reached up and pulled her wig right off her head, and took the first step into the pool. I was shocked, and smiled; I didn't know she had on a wig. I followed her right into the pool. Brrrr!... (continued next week)

'The Book Thief' — incredibly inspiring

Review by Diana Saenger

After seeing The Book Thief twice already, it's my favorite film of the year so far. Some critics label it a Holocaust movie. However, while the story takes place in a small town in Germany right before the World War II starts, I think it's about so much more.

In the mid-1940s, Liesel Meminger (Sophie Nelisse) is traveling on a train with her mother and brother. When the boy dies on the journey, it's too much for his Communist mother, so she gives Liesel up for adoption.

Liesel's foster parents, Hans (Geoffrey Rush) and Rosa Hubermann (Emily Watson), were expecting two children. Rosa is brusque and mad because they won't get money for two children. She frightens Liesel, but Hans looks at her with puppy-dog eyes, addresses her as "Your majesty" and Liesel knows she will be okay.

Liesel has no choice but to fit in with her new family. Meeting Rudy (Nico Liersch), the cute blond boy next door, helps because he's immediately fixated with her. Hans adores their new daughter. When he discovers she wants to read, Hans teaches her a little every night. He even creates an amazing word dictionary on the basement walls with chalk so she can add new words she learns.

The Book Thief includes many delightful moments of kids running free in the streets, playing soccer and laughing -- unaware of those dark shadows looming around them. When Hitler orders everyone into the streets to burn all the books because they are evil, Liesel is heartbroken. She actually stays behind and grabs one from the burning fire, stuffing it under her coat.

The Hubermann home becomes more complex when a young unhealthy man shows up at their door. Hans immediately pulls Max (Ben Schnetzer), the Jewish son whose father saved Hans' life, into the house. They hide him upstairs where he and Liesel become friends. When the Germans become more present in the neighborhood, the Hubermanns make him a bed in the basement. Liesel reads to him there, but he is so sick she knows he probably does not hear her.

Liesel's pursuit of reading gets the best of her when she delivers laundry to Buergemeister Herman's (Rainer Bock) house. His wife, Ilsa (Barbara Auer), saw Liesel steal the book at the fire and invites the girl into their library. Walls filled with books become undiscovered treasures in Liesel eyes as she's told she can visit anytime to read there. But when the invite is too dangerous, Liesel becomes a book thief sneaking in to "borrow" books.

When Max regains some health, it's time for him to leave before he is discovered and the result would be the Nazis carting off the Hubermann family. Losing Max breaks Liesel's heart for she has already lost her mother and brother.

The excellent cast is one of the things making this film so special. Rush offers a role worthy of Oscar attention. The way his character turns Liesel's life around by showing the child tenderness and love, yet always staying two steps ahead of danger is extraordinarily touching. He taps into her thirst of reading — a sort of escapism -- helping her to envision worlds far beyond her imagination. When reading doesn't work, he brings out his old accordion and livens up her life with even more pleasure. It's like Rush went to bed one day an actor and woke up Hans Hubermann.

It's the same for Watson. Rosa starts off as another of Liesel's nightmares — but in essence Rosa's actions are toughening up the youngster for a future offering little promise. Schnetzer is adorable as the boy next door who shares good times and bad with Liesel while they rarely realize the world around them is changing.

Nelisse enchants us in her first film. She's beautiful, intuitive, and so talented we only know her as Liesel. There's a twinkle in her beautiful eyes that achieves its own communication whether admiring Rudy, loving Hans, or becoming more enduring to Rosa and Max. There's a joie de vivre that lights her face -- probably in real life as well -- but her ability to dig deep in the emotional scenes puts her way ahead of actresses with far more experience. I couldn't take my eyes off of Nelisse during the entire film.

There are scenes of German brutality here that are hard to watch as well as tear-inducing moments. But the film contains many funny ones as well -- like when the book from the fire sends cough-inducing smoke to Liesel's face exposing her misdeed to Hans.

A very unusual element in this film — adapted from author Markus Zusak novel "The Book Thief" — is that Zusak has created an unusual narrator. I didn't realize who it was the first time I saw the movie but found his words even more soulful and fascinating the second time. They're like a metaphor of a clean sheet flapping on a clothesline and bouncing words of encouragement and merriment into the air, but then the corners of the sheet slowly fold and drift down enclosing the space with little air and a sense of darkness.

How director Brian Percival handles this difference and his terrific cast is a nod to the inspiration evoked here. John Williams' score sets the varying moods so well. Cinematography by Florian Ballhaus (The Devil Wears Prada, The Time Traveler's Wife) doesn't miss a scene, making each one feel believable. Kudos also to Michael Petroni for his adaptation of the book, which sold eight million copies worldwide and held a place on The New York Times best-seller list for almost seven years. This wonderful book has been translated into more than 30 languages, won literary awards, and appeared on numerous best-of-the-year lists.

Some people may refer to The Book Thief as a Holocaust film, but I call it a movie full of wonder, hope and courage during the worst of times.

Great production values and performances in new 'Hunger Games'

Review by Diana Saenger

In the Hunger Games series anything can go wrong at just the right time. In the middle film, The Hunger Games: Catching Fire, this immediately proves true. Katniss Everdeen (Jennifer Lawrence) is in much need of a rest, after being labeled the "Girl of Fire" and the top survivor in District 11's 74th Annual games at the Capitol of the nation of Panem. But Panem's evil and hard-hearted President Snow (Donald Sutherland) has another plan for her in which he hopes means her death.

Katniss' sister, Primrose (Willow Shields) is chosen to dual in the next deadly Hunger Games. Katniss knows her sister will not survive this event and decides to find a way to safety for her and her family. In on the idea is Katniss' boyfriend Gale (Liam Hemsworth).

Before they can even hatch their plan, Snow has them watched, audiotaped and knows their plans. He insists Katniss and Peeta (Josh Hutcherson), her partner in the games, must do a Victors' PR tour to all the districts spouting their support of the new regime. If they fail in their mission their family members will be killed.

Snow has all kinds of games to test each of the tributes' skills. The arena is new, the games and challenges are new. Even the gamemaker, Plutarch (Philip Seymour Hoffman), is new.

When Snow gets fed up with Katniss' luck to survive he wants her killed, and to do that is to make her participate in the special Quarter Quell anniversary game to be the last one standing. This is hard for Katniss to comprehend since her evil doings will make good people die.

This game will unite the most famed of the past Victors, including Katniss, Peeta, Finnick (Sam Claflin), Bee

Tee (Amanda Plummer), axe-thrower Johanna Mason (Jena Malone) and Mags (Lynn Cohen), the 80 year-old former victor known for her compassion.

In her and Peeta's PR remarks before the large audience they get rounds of applause. Snow and Plutarch see this in their "in the air" TV-like screens. As the audience members raise their three middle fingers as a symbol of admiration for Katniss, Snow is furious and plots further revenge. Woody Harrelson plays his cards well as Haymitch, a veteran of the Games who counsels Katniss, but is he true to her? Lawrence is amazing as Katniss' and Sutherland (as Snow) has a hateful scowl on that never gives way.

The film looks beautiful and some top designers were brought in to help with costumes. The most surprising and not-to miss moment in the film of Katniss' knockout wedding dress, was designed by Cinna with transformation help from designer Tex Savario, a 28 year-old Indonesian. It alone is worth the price of admission.

The Hunger Games: Catching Fire is full of intense engagement, action, danger, pride, hope, wonderful performances, excellent visual effects and music score. There's also a lot of comedy thanks to the goofy TV host, Stanley Tucci, and the absurdly dressed Effie (Elizabeth Banks), Snow's PR girl.

My only negative thought about these films are the dark, no-moral messages about killing friends to survive. With so much news-media about our youths today taking their own lives, I think films like these only further these instances. Although rated PG-13, I would change that to 14.

The Pilgrims ate turkey, fish and venison. They had cabbages, carrots, corn, onions, wild plums, berries, and honey too.

The End of the Feast!

If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. It shall be the bidder's responsibility to examine the project site(s) in order to determine the exact existing conditions, and the character and extent of the work to be performed. The bidder's omission, or failure to visit the project site(s) and acquaint itself with existing conditions shall in no way relieve the successful bidder from obligations with respect to the Contract. Submission of a bid shall be prima facie evidence of the bidder's compliance with this requirement. Copies of the general prevailing wage rate of per diem wages, as determined by the California Director of Industrial Relations and by the US Department of Labor Statistics, are available from the websites of the respective agencies. Any successful bidder who intends to use a craft of classifications not shown on the general prevailing wage determinations may be required to pay the wage rate of the craft or classification most closely related to it as shown in the general determinations effective at the time of the call for bids.

or b) Federal Minimum Wages Federal minimum wage rates for this project as predetermined by the U.S. Secretary of Labor are set forth in the Special Provisions. Current determinations are available online at <http://www.gpo.gov/davisbacon/ca.html>

If there is a difference between the Federal minimum wage rates predetermined by the U.S. Secretary of Labor and the prevailing wage rates determined by the City of El Cajon for a similar classification of labor, the Contractor and its subcontractors shall pay not less than the higher wage rate.

All bids submitted shall be accompanied by a check made payable to the City of El Cajon, and certified by a responsible bank, in an amount which shall not be less than 10% of the amount of the bid, or by a surety bond for said amount and so payable, executed by a surety company authorized to do business in the State of California, and satisfactory to said City.

A performance Bond and Labor and Material Bond, each in an amount equal to 100% of the contract price, shall be executed by the successful bidder within ten days after the Notice of Award of Contract has been mailed. Securities or bank or savings and loan certificates of deposit may be substituted for any moneys withheld to ensure performance of the contract, pursuant to Section 22300 of the California Public Contract Code.

The Contractor shall provide the City with a signed and notarized non-collusion affidavit. Bids shall be delivered to the Purchasing Agent at the 1st floor front counter of City Hall, 200 Civic Center Way, El Cajon, California 92020. At the time fixed for receiving bids, all bids will be publicly opened, examined and declared. The results of the bidding and the calculations of the bids will be reported to the City Council at a meeting subsequent to the date above set for the opening of bids.

The City Council reserves the right to reject any and all bids if it considers it necessary to do so for the public good, and it may reject the bid of any bidder who has been delinquent or unfaithful in any former contract with the City. In all contracts subject to this part where federal funds are involved, no bid submitted shall be invalidated by the failure of the bidder to be licensed in accordance with the laws of this state. However, at the time the contract is awarded, the contractor shall be properly licensed in accordance with the laws of this state. The first payment for work or material under any contract shall not be made unless and until the Registrar of Contractors verifies to the agency that the records of the Contractors State License Board indicate that the contractor was properly licensed at the time the contract was awarded. Any bidder or contractor not so licensed shall be subject to all legal penalties imposed by law, including, but not limited to, any appropriate disciplinary action by the Contractors State License Board. Failure of the bidder to obtain proper and adequate licensing for an award of a contract shall constitute a failure to execute the contract and shall result in the forfeiture of the security of the bidder.

NOTICE TO POTENTIAL BIDDERS: If you are considering bidding on this property lien, you should understand that there are risks involved in bidding at a trustee auction. You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. Our Best Friends

Pet of the Week

"Hi, friends! My name is RUDY, and I'm a 10-month-old little Spitz mix whom everyone says is as cute as a button. People tell me that I look like a little fox, and everybody is captivated by my beautiful eyes. I'm tentative when I first meet somebody, so it takes me a little time to warm up to a new person. Once I know you, however, I'll be loving, loyal, and quite entertaining. Did you notice my soft, healthy coat? Just wait until you feel it. I get along great with other dogs, and I'd do well in either a house or an apartment. I'd want to be in an adult home, and I'd do best with a daily walk. That would allow me to get my exercise, and it's the perfect time for us to spend some time together. Doesn't that sound nice? I already know how to sit on command, and I'm eager to learn all kinds of new things. The shelter staff isn't sure yet if I've been house trained, but I bet I could figure it all out if you'll teach me. Won't you come visit me soon at the El Cajon Animal Shelter? The kind staff can take us out to the play yard so we can get better acquainted. I hope you'll come quickly! Love, Rudy" Kennel #57
