Hilliker's unveils first cage free hen house

by Patt Bixby
For the past three generations Hilliker's Ranch Fresh Eggs has been providing San Diego County consumers with ranch fresh eggs to San Ysidro, Escondido, Oceanside, Alpine and everywhere in between. Hilliker's has been a family owned and operated business since 1942 when they first opened their doors in Encanto before moving to 11321 El Nopal, Lakeside.

In November, 2008, voters passed Proposition 2 which changed the way egg producing hens can be housed in California. Hilliker's President, Frank Hilliker, responded by inviting told local media and guests to observe the investment of the state-of-art cage free hen house, which to date has cost $200,000. Hilliker said there are four more houses to be updated.

When Proposition 2 was passed by the voters it meant the chickens would have more room. However there were no guidelines set as to what that meant," Hilliker said.

He decided to be proactive with his best guess and information from U.C. Davis.

A number of businesses have left California because of very strict business regulations. Hilliker and his family want to stay where three generations have made Hilliker's a well known name in the industry. When Proposition 2 was talked about Hilliker asked his dad, Harold Hilliker, what he thought.

Harold laughed and replied "This is going to be your problem."

Frank Hilliker told those present that when he's asked what he does for a living, he tell's people, "It warms my heart to be a farmer."

ing to 100 percent cage free housing and away from the standard industry cages which were installed by the first generation in the 1940's. The first new cage free hen house has 8,500 white and brown Leghorn hens roaming freely. The change to range free should be completed by 2015.

Hilliker is using local contractors, banks and businesses to make the transition, and is proud to be a part of the community of Lakeside.

Rancho San Diego/Spring Valley Rotary Club donates $7,000 to Cuyamaca College as a parting gift

The Rancho San Diego/Spring Valley Rotary Club has gone out with a bang. The service organization, which disbanded this summer after 49 years because of declining membership, has donated more than $35,000 in its bank account to an array of nonprofits and educational groups, including more than $7,000 to Cuyamaca College.

"We've always been here to support the community, and we felt that this was the best use of the money we had," said Rusty Burkett, who served as the Rancho San Diego/Spring Valley Rotary Club's last president. "We're honored to have been able to help."

Cuyamaca College was the biggest winner.

Cuyamaca College's Unlimited Potential! (also known as UP!), which supports former foster youth and others who have face great financial uncertainty, received $1,670. The Cuyamaca College Give the Dream program, which provides students small emergency grants to help them deal with unforeseen hardships, received $2,670. The Cuyamaca College President's Fund, used to support college events and programs, received $2,670.

Donations were made through the Foundation for Grossmont & Cuyamaca Colleges.

"We are thankful for the generous gift from the Rancho San Diego/Spring Valley Rotary Club, a gift that will help increase access for many more students at Cuyamaca College," said Cuyamaca College President Dr. Mark Zacovic.

Other recipients were the American Cancer Society, Animal Rescue Kompany, Big Brothers Big Sisters of San Diego County, the Eric Paredes Save A Life Foundation, Honor Flight San Diego, the San Diego Humane Society and SPCA, Stoney's Kids, the ALS Association of Orange County, the National MS Society, Noah Homes, Noah's Ark Angel Foundation, Optometry Giving Sight, the San Diego Sheriff's Museum, the Tariq Khamisa Foundation, and the Water Conservation Garden at Cuyamaca College.

Burkett noted the Rancho San Diego/Spring Valley Rotary Club contributed to a variety of causes since its inception in 1965, with efforts ranging from installing smoke alarms at senior homes and putting together food baskets during the holidays to supporting music programs at Monte Vista and Valhalla high schools and helping local veterans groups.

The Rotary Club long supported Cuyamaca College, and many Cuyamaca College presidents have served as members, including Zacovic, Sherrill Amador, Geraldine Perri, and Samuel Ciccati. The service group has also funded a number of Cuyamaca College Osher Scholarships over the years.

The Rancho San Diego/Spring Valley Rotary Club was part of Rotary International, a service organization with more than 34,000 clubs and 1.2 million members across the globe.

The CPUC is holding a series of Public Participation Hearings in Phase 1 of its proceeding (R.12-06-013) to provide an opportunity for customers of Southern California Edison, Pacific Gas and Electric Company, and San Diego Gas & Electric to communicate directly with the CPUC about how proposed rate design changes, if approved, would impact them. The CPUC's Public Advisor's Office will be available at each Hearing to advise customers on reading their utility bills, to help resolve billing problems, to explain available programs to reduce costs to customers, and to distribute information about the CPUC and how to participate in CPUC proceedings. Comments from the public can help the CPUC reach an informed decision, and consumers are encouraged to attend Public Participation Hearings. For more information on Public Participation Hearings, please see www.cpuc.ca.gov/PPH. While a quorum of Commissioners and/or their staff may attend these Hearings, no official action will be taken. CPUC hosts public participation hearings to hear from consumers

The California Public Utilities Commission (CPUC) will hold a series of Public Participation Hearings throughout the state to hear directly from the public about cases at the CPUC related to electricity rates.

Regarding "rate design" - restrictions on residential rate design were lifted after the signing of Assembly Bill 327 in October 2013, and utilities can now propose residential rates that are more reflective of cost. The CPUC is currently evaluating educating the general public about the potential for abuse of medications. This effort is designed to prevent pill abuse and theft by getting rid of potentially dangerous, expired, unused or unwanted prescription drugs in a safe manner. Studies show that most teens who have abused prescription drugs get those drugs from their own homes or from the homes of friends. Bring your outdated, unused or unwanted prescription pills, ointments, or liquids; no questions asked! Go to www.deadiversion.usdoj.gov and click "Got Drugs?" for more drop off locations.

Back to school sun safety tips from the Skin Cancer Foundation

During a typical school day, it's not unusual for children to receive a significant amount of sun exposure. That's unfortunate, because sustaining five or more sunburns in youth increases lifetime melanoma risk by 80 percent. The sun's ultraviolet (UV) rays are also associated with 86 percent of melanomas and about 90 percent of nonmelanoma skin cancers.

"The time to learn and start practicing sun protection is in youth, when safety behaviors can be established for a lifetime," said Perry Robins, MD, President of The Skin Cancer Foundation. "Parents need to teach children about proper sun protection habits, the best method of skin cancer prevention."

The Skin Cancer Foundation offers the following recommendations for keeping children sun-safe during the school year.

- UV rays are most intense from 10 AM to 4 PM, and this is when students are usually outside for recess, physical education and after-school programs. Check with the school to see if there are adequate places for students to seek shade during outdoor activities. Shade can be provided by gazebos and roof structures, awnings, shade sails, and natural shade, such as thickly leaved trees.

- Clothing is the single most effective form of sun protection for the body, so send kids to school in densely woven and bright- or dark-colored fabrics, which offer the best defense.

The more skin you cover, the better, so choose long sleeves and long pants whenever possible.

- Send children to school with a wide-brimmed hat and UV-blocking sunglasses, to protect their face, neck and eyes. If they won't wear a wide-brimmed hat, a baseball cap is better than nothing.

- Parents should apply a sunscreen with an SPF 15 or higher to their children's skin every morning, at least 30 minutes before they go outside.

Dinner Diva

Grow your own stir fry from kitchen scraps

by Leanne Ely

The next time you toss your kitchen scraps, you might want to ask yourself if you can regrow them first!

That's right! You can regrow some of your common peels and cores into a whole new plant. And in some cases, you don't even need a garden. Is your mind blown yet? Good.

Here are 6 common kitchen scraps you can regrow into something else:

Celery/romaine lettuce/cabbage/bok choy. When you get to the bottom of a stalk of celery, a head of lettuce, bok choy or cabbage, take that white root end of the plant and put it in a bowl of water on a sunny window. Cover the root but not the top

Sunscreen should be reapplied every two hours outdoors and right after swimming or sweating heavily.

- Older children should learn to apply sunscreen themselves, and make it a routine habit. For extended time outdoors, a sunscreen with an SPF 30 or higher should be used instead.

- One ounce of sunscreen (about the size of a golf ball) should be applied to the entire body. Remind children to cover those easy to miss spots, such as the back of ears and neck, as well as the tops of the feet and hands.

Many schools don't allow students to use sunscreen or wear a hat outdoors during the school day without written permission from a physician. The Skin Cancer Foundation has created a sun protection form that parents and doctors can sign, allowing students to bring these items to school, apply and use as needed. The form is available at www.skincancer.org/schoolnote of the cutting. After a couple of days, new growth will start to appear. You can also put the cutting right into soil and keep it moist for a week. Soon, little green shoots will poke above the soil!

Ginger. Ginger is an easy food to regrow. Just take a piece of ginger root and pop it in potting soil. Make sure the little buds are facing up. Keep it out of direct sunlight, water it regularly and before long, you'll have a new established ginger plant. When you want to eat it, haul the plant up out of the soil and use the root in your cooking! If you'd rather not eat the ginger, it will grow into very pretty house-plant if you leave it.

Onions. Slice the root end from your onion about 1/2 an inch from the root. Plant it in the garden and put a bit of soil on top. You can put them indoors in pots if you'd prefer. Either way, if you do this with all of your onions, you'll never have to buy an onion again!

Garlic. Do you know what happens when you plant a garlic clove in the ground? It grows into a new bulb of garlic. Just plant the clove in a warm spot with lots of sunlight (be sure to plant it root end down!) and soon it will produce new growth. Keep cutting the shoots back so the garlic puts all of its energy into becoming a juicy garlic bulb.

Potatoes. If you have potatoes that have sprouted on you

(this happens rather quickly with organic potatoes), cut the potato into 2" chunks being careful to have at least one or two eyes per chunk, and let those bits dry out for a couple of days at room temperature. Plant in about 8 inches of soil with the eye facing up. Cover with 4 inches of soil. As roots appear, add more soil. Soon you will have potatoes.

Pineapple. After you peel your pineapple, take that big green frond and remove any fruit that remains. (Alternatively, you can hold onto the pineapple nice and firmly while giving the leaves a good twist, which should take the stalk out of the fruit.) If you do not remove the bits of pineapple flesh that are hanging onto the leaf stalk, it will rot and might kill your baby pineapple plant. Remove the leaves on the bottom of the stalk so about an inch of the bottom is clear of them. Taking a sharp paring knife, carefully slice bits off of the bottom until you can see the small little circles start to appear. These are the plant's root buds. Plant this pineapple crown in a nice warm spot and give it plenty of water. When the plant is established, water it once a week. Within 2 or 3 years you'll have a home-grown pineapple!

Growing your own food is an amazing thing to do, and growing food from scraps, well, talk about saving money and reducing waste!

Dear Dr. Luauna — 'A Woman Called of God'

Dear Friends,

I will be traveling in the north east over the next few weeks to minister in Boston, Philadelphia and Maine. First, I would really appreciate your prayers for the meetings scheduled in churches and everywhere I will be preaching while I am there. My schedule is full and I am looking forward to watch the Lord work to encourage the pastors and the hearts of the people.

I will be posting updates as much as possible on Facebook: Dr. Luauna Stines & Twitter: @DrLuaunaStines

I will also be sharing about my new book release, "A Woman Called of God – The Tangled Web," proceeds from these books go towards the goals of our foundation: A Touch From Above.

This week I have included reviews from others who have read my personal journey in detail, including experiences over the last 35 years. I was compelled to write this book, although, difficult at times, to empower men and women to rise to their potential in truth and balance.

Thank you for your prayers!

Book Reviews for A Woman Called of God – The Tangled Web

★★★★★ Worth the Read

Thank you so much for your willingness to share your life with us. I have been aware that women have been minimized in the church for many years. Your story is a graphic and extreme example of how that can transpire. It is inspiring to see you persevered and were also supported by others in your search for God's answers. I recommend it for the impact it made on my life and also for the compelling story that it told.

★★★★★ I couldn't put this book down!!!

I absolutely LOVED this book! Dr. Luauna Stines bares her soul for the sole purpose of fulfilling the call that God has for her to save souls for JESUS! Her trials and accomplishments are an open door for women all over the WORLD to fulfill their call from God without fear, rejection, or intimidation. She is an inspiration to many!!

★★★★★ Amazing book just like the other ones

Amazing book just like the other ones Dr. Luauna has written. A true woman of God and such an inspiration to not only all women, but all men as well. A must read—hard to even put down once you start reading it.

Smart kitty

Two little ladies were shopping in the mall when Joanne smiled: "My cat can really play chess!"

With a shocking expression, Angelina praised Joanne's cat: "Really? It must be very smart!"

Just when Angelina finished her sentence, Joanne said: "Well... Actually, I don't know about that. I usually win three out of four times."

Little Bit's Info...

I am already neutered, in need of an experienced adopter, and up to date with shots.

Little Bit's Story...

Hi, I'm a big cat, however, they call me Little Bit. My owner had to bring me here because they couldn't keep me :(I have pretty gold eyes, and I'm a gray tabby, with a little white here and there... I have a white chest and stripey tabby legs. I purr-furr to be the only cat, and I am very cuddly, and love to lay and stretch out in your lap.

I really miss being held, and cuddled, my chin needs some scratching too. As you can see I am a misfit for this cage life. Please come in and see me. You will just fall in love with me too. I am in cage #115, I fill it up. (It's a small cage!) LOL!!

Dangers of dogs riding in PU trucks

You may see it quite often as you're driving around town: dogs riding in the back of trucks. You might even know someone who does it. Why not? It seems so convenient to just load your dog up in the back and take them with you.

According to the Humane Society of the United States, 100,000 dogs are killed each year in accidents involving riding in truck beds. In addition, veterinarians see numerous cases of dogs being injured because they jumped out or were thrown from the bed of a pickup truck. If these dogs are lucky enough to still be alive, broken legs and joint injuries are among the most common types of damage that they sustain and often result in amputation. There are many dangers of having your four-legged friend loose in the bed of a truck while you're ramming the roads.

Eye, ear & nose damage

Since dogs always have a tendency to stick their heads out the window of a moving vehicle to smell all of those new smells on the open road. But being in the open air traveling at high speeds (whether their head is out the window or they're in the back of the truck) can likely cause damage to the delicate parts of their face. The swirling of the air currents in the bed of a pickup truck can cause dirt, debris and insects to become lodged in the dog's eyes, ears, and nose.

Being ejected from truck

We've all had to slam on our brakes while we're driving at some point; it's inevitable. Now imagine slamming on your brakes while your beloved dog is in the truck bed. He's going to get a serious jolt and it's possible that he could fly right out of the bed and into the road. You also run the risk of getting into an accident while you're traveling with your precious cargo which could also force him out of the bed. And if you think that securing him with a rope or chain is any better, you're wrong. There have been cases where dogs were thrown out of the back of the truck while still attached and being dragged on the road while the owner is still driving. Talk about a nightmare situation.

Jumping ship

Even if you don't slam on your brakes or get into an accident, your dog may have plans of her own. Does your dog get easily distracted by squirrels, dogs, or other animals? Who's to say she's not going to willingly jump out in order to better investigate a situation? How long would it take you to realize she's gone? How will you be able to protect her from getting hit by other cars or straying too far away while you're in the driver's seat?

What are the laws?

In February of 2009, Senator Norman Stone Jr.'s bill to ban riding around with dogs in truck beds was defeated on the Senate 30-17. Although the bill was passed by the House unanimously in 2008, some Senators questioned whether or not it was a real problem. Others worried that farmers would be unable to ride with their dogs, leading to a lot of unhappy dogs.

There are, however, a number of individual states that have banned this type of pet travel and other states have bills pending.

What's the alternative?

Even though it's not against the law in all 50 states, traveling with dogs in the bed of your pickup trucks should never be an option. The Humane Society of the US notes that they don't know of any brand of harness that is safe for the back of the truck. It's best to have the dog in the cab with you, and if it's an extended cab, the dog should be restrained in the back and away from the windshield. For trucks, pet travel crates, pet safety belts, and pet car seats are the safest bets. And if none of these are available to you at the time you're taking your truck (or any vehicle), consider keeping your dog safe at home.

‘Sin City’ – a ridiculous ride into fantasy

Review by James Colt Harrison

The rousing, slam-bang crime film Sin City: A Dame To Kill For is a prequel-sequel to the first film made in 2005. Rodriguez and Miller, the two maniacal brains behind the double dazzling films, have returned to out-do all of Raymond Chandler detective books/films made in the 1940s and make sure the film goes over-the-top and beyond to places you have never seen or imagined. It is pure “camp,” outrageous Grand Guignol gone mad, and out-Grand-ed the French with their brand of mayhem.

The most stylized film since the first one, it is literally an ink drawing that comes alive off the page. With color sparsely used to accentuate a gown, blue eyes, or a knock-out female figure, Rodriguez uses his camera as a brush to flick away an unnecessary color spectrum for subjects that do not need a bright hue. Rodriguez shows he has emerged as a major artist for interpreting emotions and actions with his camera. He is simply the most creative man working today in Hollywood who is pointing the direction for new ways to use the motion picture camera in the future.

Mickey Rourke (Marv) is a no-morals hard-nails, tough guy who never let’s a fight or shooting go by him. He wakes up on the side of the road with a bunch of dead guys and wonders what happened. Throughout the film, he engages in various fights that are not necessarily his, and he never seems to get killed. That’s no spoiler as he may have to return in the next sequel!

Let’s not ignore the fact that Rourke, a former prizefighter himself, is perfectly cast. He has the most detailed and intricate make-up job almost ever seen on screen. His nose is magnificent, jutting out from the top of his forehead like the old Dick Tracy of comic book days—straight, sharp and powerful. Just like his character. He’s a mangled mess, but we love him.

Josh Brolin seems to have the biggest part in the movie. It wouldn’t be an LA crime movie if he didn’t have trouble with a dame. She’s the dame of the title—Eva Green playing a woman who gets what she wants and then some. She ruins men’s lives. She takes them for all they’ve got and then wrecks their emotions. My kind of gal. And Brolin goes from tough-handsome to tough beat-up and bloody all for guess who?

An obligatory chase scene is part of this genre. Rourke grabs on to a black 1948 Tucker automobile, a rarity indeed. In fact, he erroneously says there were only a “couple of dozen made.” Wrong! There were 50 complete Tucker models made and 47 exist today. Hooray to Production Designers Caylah Eddlebute and Steve Joyner for selecting this unique car that becomes a star all by itself.

There seem to be three or four plots all going at the same time, all fairly confusing but adding up to a good time anyway. The violence -- and there is plenty of it -- is muted by not actually showing a drop of blood. It’s all shown in b&w negative, which is white and not bone-chilling.

The film is not without humor. There are many laughs induced by the over-stylized use of mayhem that is beyond the pale. It doesn’t seem nice to chuckle when someone’s arm is hacked off, but there you have it. It’s the way it’s done. With finesse.

The picture may not appeal to the ladies, but men should get a big kick out of it providing they put their entire tongue in their cheeks and not imagine that any of it is real. It’s a ridiculous ride into fantasy and a devilishly good one at that.

'If I Stay' — so-so

by Diana Saenger

If we had not seen The Fault in Our Stars earlier this summer the movie If I Stay might have seemed more appealing. However, the two plots have a lot in common; teen romance where one dies or lives. It also does not help that the title of the film If I Stay takes little imagination to imagine what it's about before even seeing the trailer.

Young actors Jamie Blackley (Adam) and Chloë Grace Moretz (Mia Hall) do offer up some admirable performances that keep one entertained for a short while. Based on Gayle Forman's popular book, the movie begins with a tragedy when the whole family is off on snowy and slippery roads for a family getaway, and have a horrific accident.

Mia, in a coma, is soon seen walking around a dreadful crash site, and watching ambulances take family members away. Fraught with fear, she's seen roaming the hospital as a spirit of her former self listening to doctors talk about her family members and watching gurneys glide down the halls. She's worried about her younger brother Teddy (Jakob Davies), her parents (Mireille Enos, and Joshua Leonard).

As she runs from room to room sticking her face right up into the doctors faces to ask them if her family is okay or what's going on and realizing they can't hear her; it's frustrating. The film also jumps back and forth in time to wonderful family scenes in their house where relatives and friends come to sing and laugh and be together and praise Mia for her wonderful talents on the cello. Her grandfather (Stacy Keach) makes a heartfelt visit to her hospital bed that he hopes makes a big impact on whether she lives or dies. Keach is wonderful here.

Not really looking for a love connection, Mia is surprised when she meets Adam and they quickly become a couple, a serious couple. As she progresses with her talents on the cello, Adam's band is becoming ing more famous. And soon the quandary comes: he's heading west for a terrific band opportunity, while she has applied to attend Juilliard in New York.

The relationship moves up and down and looks grim. But as friends and family flock to the hospital after the accident, Mia can see and hear how much she means to Adam. He speaks to her as if he had just kissed her goodbye the night before and that his words would assemble into her dreams. But as days pass by that becomes doubtful.

As in The Fault in Our Stars, for many this will be a tearjerker, for others a relatively boring movie. I never really felt the anxiety of someone supposedly between life and death. Yet for me, just watching Blackley and Moretz was exciting because it's two new young talents who hopefully will go a long way in films. I also enjoyed the wonderful cello playing and the music by Adam's band.

Stoney's Kids 23rd Anniversary

It's All About the Kids

by Diana Saenger

A large crowd of generous supporters, local dignitaries and business owners turned out at Stoney's Kids 23rd Anniversary at Sycuan Resort. Everyone was also there to celebrate Stoney Stone's 89th birthday.

The Sycuan outdoor patio came alive with a mariachi band and music by Eric Lund. Tables were delightfully decorated and each diner placement included a creative card made by the kids from St. Madeleine Sophie's Center. After a well-attended and lively silent auction, everyone was invited to a delicious buffet dinner provided by Sycuan. The Glove Bakery provided Stoney's cake and delicious cupcakes to all.

Stone established the non-profit Stoney's Kids in 1991

with a desire to build an organization to help kids; make a positive impact on them through positive works; and find a group of volunteers that could work with businesses and community leaders to bring his goal to fruition. The nonprofit's mission statement is: "Stoney's Kids is dedicated to improving the health and welfare of the children of East County by supporting the programs, activities, and means for young people to develop essential life skills and make healthy choices for a successful future."

Many took the podium to congratulate Stony who sat beaming at his table with friends and colleagues.

"What brings out the best in Americans is doing something for other people," said Former Congressman Duncan Lee Hunter while presenting a recognition plaque from his son, Congressman Duncan D Hunter who was out of town). "You're the guy I've always looked to with a heart as big as this great country."

Representatives from Senator Joel Anderson and Assemblyman Brian Jones' offices also presented Stoney with recognition plaques.

SD County Board of Supervisors chairwoman Dianne Jacob wished Stoney a happy 89th birthday. "I don't know many proclamations you have, but this one is a little bit different," Jacob said. "There is one different name on it that was not there the last time. And Stoney, you have done so much for so many, and especially the kids who are so important to all of us. So God Bless You."

Olivia English, representing the Hillside Recognition Center in El Cajon, spoke about her early years at the Center, becoming a volunteer and eventually a staff member.

"It's lots of fun, and Stoney, with all his great donations made me and so many other kids' childhoods special," English said.

Joelle Sawawa from Granite Hills High School was proud to attend the event. She's one of the planners for the school's STING (Student Teachers Igniting the next generation) program. "I'm so honored to be able to wish such an honorable man Happy Birthday, she said. "It's been a pleasure to work with Stoney's Kids, and we are so grateful for all of the donations. I want to thank Mr. Stone, Miss Bonnie Stone-Davis and Stoney's Kids board members from the bottom of my heart."

If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, call (619) 466-6530 or fax 619-698-4912 or visit the internet website at www.statewiderecon.com for information regarding the sale of this property, using the file number assigned to this case. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the internet web site. The best way to determine sale results and/or postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale. P1107261 8/14, 8/21, 08/28/2014

If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. Chargers lose to San Francisco 21-7 at Levi

by Chuck Karazsia

In the third game of the NFL pre-season, starters in a ‘tune-up’ play more than in any of the other three games. As with pre-season games, the final score is usually not indicative of how the starters performed in the game or, how a team will fare during the regular season when these games count.

Good teams know how to rebound after a bad outing. The Chargers played with a purpose Sunday. Unlike last week’s blowout loss at Seattle a lackluster performance, in which the Chargers appeared to be going through the motions, showing no emotion, having played it like a meaningless exhibition practice.

With a renewed intensity, the San Diego Chargers’ starters, both on offense and defense’ owned the San Francisco 49’ers first team players. For a quarter and half the Bolts ‘D’ put pressure on the quarterback, creating havoc and a caused a couple of fumbles. A one-man-wrecking crew Sunday was Chargers DE Corey Liuget playing like a man possessed. In less than a quarter and a half in the first stanza the Bolts defensive end had three tackles for a loss, forced a fumble, and successfully defended against two passes.

The Chargers defensive came out strong Sunday looking formidable with the return Dwight Freeney (one sack) and run stuffer Jarrett Johnson. Flanked on both ends of the defensive line these veteran playmakers made life easier for LB Donald Butler and free safety Eric Weddle with both playing aggressively. It was good to see the Chargers put pressure on a mobile quarterback.

The Bolts number one offense played well against San Francisco’s defense. Bolts signal caller Philip Rivers as he has all pre-season was amazingly accurate completing 9 of 10 passes for 85-yards tossing one touchdown to his favorite receiver tight end Antonio Gates who finished with three receptions for 28-yards.

“Rivers turned out another outstanding performance,” Chargers Head Coach Mike McCoy said. “That’s the way he’s been since he got here. He’s going to make good decisions, and, he’s got a good supporting cast and a good offensive line.”

Running back Ryan Mathews, who sat out last week, rebounded on four carries for 22-yards, a 5.1 run per carry average, catching two passes for 26-yards, and had a touchdown score called back due to a penalty to second year standout receiver Keenan Allen. Wide receiver Brelan Chancellor caught two passes for 29-yards.

An area of concern for the Chargers offense continues to be short-yardage goal line situations after getting stuffed on third down and one-yard and fourth-and-short, needing to match the intensity of the opposing defense in those situations.

“With the style of offense we’re going to play, what we want to do is to be 100% there,” McCoy said.

The San Francisco backups performed better than the Chargers, but not by much, meaning the Bolts are catching up to their quality bench depth to get to that next level. San Francisco is a team that has played in a divisional championship the last three years.

Another concern of the Chargers is the loss of the DT Kwame Gathers, who injured his knee and was placed on injured reserved list. He will not return this season.

Next up, the Chargers play the final game of the pre-season against the Arizona Cardinals at Qualcomm Stadium. Kickoff is at 1 p.m.
