friends enjoying music, fashion, food and fun - all for a good cause!

Geena the Latena from 93.3 gave away concert and Padre's tickets, Certified Personal Fashion Stylist Emma Wellings had fashion advice on what style, color and length works best for different body types at the Parkway Style Closet in front of the Sears Court.

Now through Saturday, Aug. 29, upload an Instagram video sharing how you plan to stand up to bullying to be entered for a chance to win four tickets to a local iHeart Radio concert. Don't forget to use #StompOutBullying and #ParkwayPlaza. <http://on.fb.me/1MmygQ7>

Assemblyman Brian Jones at Alpine Community Chat

by Diana Saenger

Politics is currently a hot topic with presidential candidates attending debates and defending their policies on television. Elected officials, such as Assemblyman Brian W. Jones, who has served in the California State Assembly since December 2010, have their work cut out for them. He represents the 71st Assembly District, encompassing Southern Riverside and Eastern San Diego Counties.

Long gone are the days

when life was easy and predictable. That's why many turn to their elected officials to answer questions about things going on in their neighborhoods. On August 14, Jones spoke to a group of local residents and business owners gathered together by the Alpine Mountain Empire Chamber of Commerce. Jones started the chat with his pleasure of the district he serves.

"This is my opportunity to spend some time with my constituents to find out what's going on in the state and their community," Jones said. "It allows me to get feedback from those who attend, and how I can better represent them in Sacramento."

Jones introduced his District Director Mason Heron, and asked for an update from the local fire department and the local Sheriff station.

Inspiration

Birthdays, anniversaries and other things I usually forget

by Dr. James L. Snyder

I cannot tell you how many times the Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage has explained the difference between things to remember and things to be forgotten. Without boasting, I believe I could give the lecture back to her word for word.

I know some things are better put into that black abyss called forgetfulness, to be remembered no more, not even when they would help win an argument. According to my wife, forgetting some things is more important than winning an argument. Not that I would know. I never win an argument.

I could not agree with her point of view more. I know some things should be forgotten while other things should be remembered. After all, it only makes sense. Nobody should forget everything and certainly, nobody could remember everything.

Here is my problem. I know some things are to be remembered, other things are to be forgotten, but for the life of me, I do not know which ones are which. What do I forget and what do I remember?

For example, my wife wants me to remember her birthday, but forget how old she is. I cannot tell you how many times I have reversed this situation. I am prone to forget her birthday, but remember how old she is. In fact, there are those rare moments when I have added a few years to her age. If you do not think this has gotten me into trouble, you have not done any serious thinking in a long time.

I know the birthdays come every year, but in spite of their predictable regularity, I seem somehow to forget.

I learned an important lesson in life. It is one thing to forget a birthday, but it is quite another animal to forget your wedding anniversary. However, here is the rub — unlike birthdays, not only am I to remember the date, but the number of the anniversary, as well.

Even though my wife and I share the same wedding anniversary, I forget to remember the date. I have used a variety of excuses to cover up for this mental delinquency on my part.

The first year I forgot our wedding anniversary I come up with a classy excuse, "My dear, you do not look a year older and so I forgot. How am I to remember time goes by when with you, time stands still?"

This worked the first year, but it has not worked since. Not that I have not tried, believe me.

One year, I bought my wife her anniversary present in June. However, I had forgotten all about it and just happened to run across it one Saturday in October. Since our anniversary is in August, this did not help me at all.

This year we are celebrating our 44th wedding anniversary. It is a little confusing to me because if it is the 44th anniversary my wife was five when we got married. It is amazing to me how her birthday does not keep up with our anniversary.

I still have a problem, though. Now that I remembered our anniversary this year, what do I buy her for a present? After 44 years, I have simply run out of ideas. Actually, I ran out of ideas after the 10th anniversary. What do you get someone for his or her 44th anniversary present?

Then I turned to the Bible and read, "Whoso findeth a wife findeth a good thing, and obtaineth favour of the LORD." (Proverbs 18:22).

Every great marriage is based upon forgetting and remembering the right things.

Rev. James L. Snyder is pastor of the Family of God Fellowship.

Dear Dr. Luauna — Building His Kingdom His Way

Dear Readers,

It takes a team to build a new pioneer church for Jesus. Each one, young or old, black or white, rich or poor, work together to build HIS Kingdom, right here on earth in the hearts of people. In the very beginning of pioneering a church, each and every day one must pray. You see, we need God's Wisdom to build His Church, His way. No, I'm not an expert, but I love Jesus with all my heart and was called by His Spirit long before I attended Bible College.

Many people think ministry starts out of Bible College! Wrong answer! Ministry starts right when you are saved. Learning to serve in the church you were saved in, or in a church the Holy Spirit places you in, one church, not jumping from church to church.

I served in a little church for 13 years when I first became a Christian, before I was sent out to pioneer my first church. I cleaned toilets and the church, went to open the doors for Morning Prayer 5, 6 & 7 a.m., even as a single mom with two small children ages 4 & 6. I stood at the door, welcoming people, sang in the choir, played bass in a Christian band, and helped out in drama. Wherever I was needed, I was there. Did I forget? I changed DIRTY, stinky diapers in the nursery!

I was faithful to every church service, one day I realized we need more people in these church walls to hear this wonderful message about Jesus. I bought a van and started going out to find people to come to church. Places like Com-Cor, a rehabilitation center for ex-convicts out of prison, Red Cross shelters, and many other places.

Later, I started a women's home and lived with 18 women and 5 children, for 13 years! (What a change that made in me), little did I know, the Holy Spirit was preparing me for my future ministry.

Many today want ministry, the pulpit, the mic, yet don't know a thing about serving in a local church. Serving is the first training for God's ministry. Serving with a pure heart, not speaking ugly or being filled with pride, because it's really not about us. It's all about Jesus, nothing more, nothing less! One day, I will meet my Savior and my goal still today is to take as many souls as I can with me!

Today, I serve wherever I can. Yes, I'm Senior Pastor, but I'm first HIS servant. Serving HIS people, and building His Kingdom. As I look around our new pioneer church, I see GREAT men and women, lining up to serve, the worship team, the ushers, the coffee makers, the sidewalk sweeper, the window cleaners, the toilet cleaners, the ride givers, those amazing greeters, the prayer warriors, and those faithful givers of their monies to help build His Kingdom.

The Holy Spirit is building HIS CHURCH, and we're thanking GOD for our WHOLE city San Diego. We need to tear down the back wall to make more room for another 150 chairs. Nine months ago, we started off with 100 chairs, (bought by a wonderful church, New Destiny Christian Center and Pastors Dave & Teresa Verdecchio in Philadelphia).

This Sunday all the chairs were filled. To GOD IS ALL GLORY!

I want to thank all who invest in this ministry, A Touch From Above, for your prayers, and support for our church from day

Captain Martinez of the Alpine Sheriff's Station reported that the crime rate in Alpine has continued to decline. In the last three years it has gone from 17.9 to 9.6. They have started their next year's planning and are asking for an additional deputy. The recent National Night Out was well attended with more than 100 people participating. They have an intelligence analyst who is military and did a lot of work and Afghanistan. Martinez also addressed questions about homeless encampments in the area and how they are being taken care of.

Martin Marugg, Board Member of the Alpine Fire Protection District, answered questions about fires all over the states and in Alpine. Many inquired about the additional fire fee that is required by all Alpine home owners.

Jones offered some advice on that issue, and talked about some of his legislation and bills.

"You maybe are aware of my 'Made In America' bill and many of you have supported it," Jones said. "California has the most restrictive laws regarding labeling your product if you're a manufacturer 'Made in America.' The Federal Trade Commission and 49 states agree in one standard which is easy to use. People understand it, it works, consumers understand it and manufactures understand it. California is more restrictive which puts manufacturers in a perilous position because if they mislabel the product, according to California, they can be sued by the consumer protection attorney, consumer Federation, a class-action lawsuit, or get a penalty."

Jones gave an example of a product he's been helping the manufacturer with which was finally settled that he could use the "Made in America" label. Jones' has worked on skateboard parks laws, and the changes that the state wants to make in transportation taxes and how they would be dispersed.

Some residents inquired about the drought, rates and the push in Sacramento to regulate wells on private property. Jones spoke about that and assured those people he votes against those bills. He filled in the crowd about conditions and plans for local reservoirs and stated San Diego County was good with 99% of the water supply we used last year, and that the desalinization plant would be operating soon.

Other questions discussed were about a few of the homeless people in the area, Neighborhood Watch programs, and changes in local brewery and winery licenses.

Jones thanked those who attended and the chamber for putting on the chat.

"These chats have been really good for me to know the issues of each community," he said. "I'm termed out in 2016. I do have a campaign open to run for Joel Anderson's Senate seat when he leaves in 2018."

Find a little bit of paradise in Eigenthal Switzerland

by Diana Saenger
After staying in several hotels in Germany and Switzerland it was a pleasant surprise to have a booking at The Hammer Hotel in Eigenthal located 1,030 meters above sea level at the foot of Mount Pilatus. Owner Mrs. Hammer welcomed our group as if we were old friends. She made a point of offering just the right room from several choices for all of us, and we had free Wi-Fi.

We couldn't wait to go on the sunny panoramic terrace with a view that would take our breath away. The lush green mountains surrounded us like a comfortable blanket. The view of the pristine white Swiss Alps felt like watching an XMAX film; you just wanted to reach out and touch it.

Coffee, tea, others drinks and delicious pastries were offered on the patio, which sufficed us until we went in for dinner. We had several choices of entrees and desserts of Swiss specialties from market-fresh, regional products as well as vegetarian pleasures. This was only outdone but a huge breakfast spread. Their drinking water comes from their own spring.

Some of us took walks, some naps and some just enjoyed the scenery or hearing about how the Hammer came about. The Hammer Hotel began with Anton Hammer in 1901, and the history of how it can be is quite mystifying.

"The Hammer Hotel is a Power Place in a natural paradise and a landscape of national importance," Mrs. Hammer said. "In this incomparable setting we are happy to provide our guests with hospitality and accommodation. You are guaranteed an unforgettable stay under a shimmering starry sky, surrounded by marvelous mountains. Prepare for pure relaxation!"

The Swiss Government officially acknowledged the Pilatus and the Eigenthal to be worthy of preservation in 1977. The area beneath the Mount Pilatus has a big natural diversity on different altitudes including an upland moor and pinewoods. Especially the lime stones that allow a rich flora.

One morning we were awakened by the sound of Swiss Cow bells. These are important in the mountain areas as cows might wonder off, so they wear a cow bell so their owners can find them.

This morning Mrs. Hammer stood on the terrace with a larger cowbell over her head swinging it back and forth. She said, "Watch! This hotel will be like a cuckoo clock." And as she rang the bell someone would pop their head out the window above then go back in as a head would pop out of another window. We all laughed at her charm and grace.

Anyone looking for a heavenly place where splendid treatment can be found should check out the Hammer Hotel and Restaurant, whether vacationing, or for conferences or seminars. The Hotel can be reached by car or bus from Lucerne city center in half an hour by car, or Zurich in an hour and from train in 40 minutes. The

'The Prophet' — captivating with amazing animation

Review by Jean Lowerison

Kahlil Gibran's The Prophet is a slim little book that was pretty much required reading back in the Dark Ages when I was in college. Though critics largely ignored it and sophisticated college students panned it as simplistic (and used several other less pleasant adjectives), the 1923 collection of what we might now call New-Agey advice on how to live is still number 85 on the all-time bestseller list, with 11 million copies sold. And as a poet, Gibran ranks third in sales behind Shakespeare and Lao-Tzu. Go figure.

Whether you know (or like) The Prophet doesn't matter, because GKids brings us a captivating version that wraps the well-known advice around a simple story illustrated with some of the loveliest and most diverse animation seen in a while.

Written and directed by Roger Allers, there are eight "sections," each illustrated by a different animator. Tomm

Moore (The Secret of Kells, Song of the Sea), Nina Paley (Sita Sings the Blues) and Paul Brizzi (Fantasia) are a few of them.

Liam Neeson voices the writer/artist Mustafa (aka Gibran), under house arrest on the island of Orphalis. His housekeeper is a widow named Kamila (voice of Salma Hayek), who must cross a border to clean for him every day.

Kamila's young daughter Almitra (voice of Quvenzhané Wallis) is a sad little girl who communes easily with birds and has dreams of flying, but hasn't spoken to humans since her dad died two years ago. Her deal with mom is to go to school while mom goes to clean Mustafa's house.

But Almitra and Mustafa are destined to meet, and one day they do, when Almitra surreptitiously follows her mother until it's too late to return to school.

Mustafa offers her a cookie and tells her why he doesn't leave his house: "There are all kinds of cages. I have been here seven years. My crime? Poetry." But, he continues, "We are not imprisoned by houses, bodies or other people. We are spirits, free as the wind."

They think I've been here seven years, but I've flown away many times."

The rest of the film finds Mustafa offering advice on marriage, work, good and evil, death and other core topics of human existence by means of dramatic circumstances rather than the somewhat preachy book approach.

Animation styles vary from painterly to near-cartoon, and are accompanied by Gabriel Yared's lovely score and cello solos by Yo-Yo Ma. The whole benefits from Neeson's mellifluous voice as Mustafa.

Even if you agree with Joan Acocella's acerbic comment in

The New Yorker that Gibran is saying that "everything is everything else. Freedom is slavery; waking is dreaming; belief is doubt; joy is pain; death is life," see this film for its fascinating demonstration of animation styles.

Chargers out gun the Cowboys 17-7

by Chuck Karazsia

As the future of the Chargers staying in San Diego may be up in the air. The Bolts prepare to make 2015 a year San Diego may never forget on the field of play. Very few fans left Qualcomm Stadium in the fourth quarter Thursday, unusual for the first exhibition game of the pre-season.

After missing the majority of 2014 (broken fibula), RB Danny Woodhead returned to the Chargers lineup in great shape reminding Chargers fans his determination of finding the end zone. His first touch in nearly a year produced an eight-yard touchdown on a draw play from a Philip Rivers shotgun formation.

"He's a great player as everyone has seen of him the last couple of seasons playing in our system. Whether you flank him out as a receiver on an empty set. Let him run some routes on the outside. Whether he works inside on a linebacker coming out of the backfield as you saw him score tonight, making the first guy miss often than not. He provides great leadership on this football team" remarked Chargers Head Coach Mike McCoy.

Philip Rivers led the offensive charge in the first series, making the most of his time behind excellent blocking from his interior lineman. Completing 2-of-2 passes for 20-yards, driving his team on a six-play 33-yard drive. Rivers orchestrated a balanced attack that culminated in a Woodhead touchdown.

Pre-season games are a time where the coaches coach, young players learn a new system, and the starters and backups gain cohesiveness as a unit preparing for the regular season. Keeping the players injury free in these exhibitions is vital for success in the regular and post season.

Tourek Williams LB fractured his right foot and will have surgery. Johnnie Troutman G, the former starter on the right side is out and will miss time (fractured arm). Both players will be evaluated.

First round draft pick Melvin Gordon RB got his feet wet with six carries 11-yards wanting more action. Second year running back Brandon Oliver showing speed and power gained 53-yards on 10-carries, 5.3 yd avg.

San Diego's defensive line and linebackers played hard-nosed applying pressure disrupting the Cowboys backfield, getting three quarterback sacks.

Right side LB rookie Kyle Emanuel got one of those sacks nailing the Dallas quarterback for a 7-yard loss. He also created a fumble on a punt return on the Special Teams unit in the second quarter.

"We got some good pressure at different times during the game. We got some rushes that we didn't close. Kyle had the one sack that was big for us," chimed McCoy.

The fifth round draft pick spoke about playing in his first NFL game saying, "I was definitely nervous, especially being a night game having all day to think about it. It was a lot of fun," said Emanuel.

The San Diego secondary is aided by the return of 2014 first round draft pick CB Jason Verrett. Jason plays fast and smart. He has the potential to be a top shut down corner.

Special teams played well for the Bolts. "Mike (Scifres) did a good job pinning them deep.

We had three touchbacks, three or more kicks in the end zone (Novack). The 53-yard field goal was great" said the Chargers head coach.

In the give-away/take-away department McCoy said, "Something we talked about all off season about creating turnovers. Whether it's in the kicking game or on defense. They did a nice job there."

Asked what message he gave to his rookies, McCoy replied, "Just go out and cut it loose. We'll coach you up tomorrow."

"It's a new system for everybody. They've been playing football all their lives. It's their first game in the NFL for a lot of these guy's in the second half. Just go out and cut it loose.

"Now the big thing is. How can we improve as a football team."

Tips to get faster, stronger and more flexible

If you work out a couple times a week, you are on the right path to good health. But experts say this can and should be just the beginning of your fitness journey.

"Our bodies are designed to be fast, powerful and agile," says Paul "Coach" Wade, fitness expert and author of the new book "Explosive Calisthenics." "However, modern Americans have become the slowest, least agile members of our species in all history."

Wade says a vanishing percent of people even attempt to unlock their body's full athletic potential. To help, he is offering tips to take your overall fitness to the next level.

Ditch the excuses

Getting in great shape requires consistency, and it's all too easy to make excuses for missing a workout. Whether you're always on the road or can't afford to renew your gym membership, Wade says such excuses don't hold water.

"While modern training methods involve equipment like barbells, balls, boxes and gymnastics gear, the superior way of building maximum speed, power and ability is the old-school method of using just your body's own weight, nothing else," he says.

Whether you're crunched for time or crunched for space, don't let these circumstances prevent you from getting a great workout. Pushups, squats, leg raises, bridges and jumps are just a few fundamental exercises that can be performed in a small space without any gear.

Ditch the fear

Traditional calisthenic moves used by gymnasts, martial artists, athletes and tumblers -- such as flips and kip-ups -- may seem intimidating. But Wade says that most people have the inherent ability to master such moves by working on each one in progressions.

"Movements like these have been handed down from generation to generation," he says. "They should not be the exclusive domain of gymnasts.

Stay focused

Don't try to take shortcuts. Successful athletes don't leap ahead and tackle moves they aren't ready for -- they find ways to make the stuff they can already do work even better for them.

When it comes to physical fitness, don't settle for halfway decent. No matter what your level of fitness is today, take a cue from the fitness experts to use more of your full potential.

Pet of the Week — Louie

Howdy, folks! My name is LOUIE, and I'm a quiet, mild-mannered Chihuahua who's about nine years old. My main goal is to find a kind, loving person who'll let me sit in his or her lap as much as possible. It makes me feel so good when I can snuggle in close, feeling safe and secure. You might notice my one lower tooth sticking out.

Most people say it just adds to my cuteness. You see, I went to the vet for a dental cleaning, so now my remaining teeth are nice and clean. As an older little guy, I need to be treated with care and consideration, so I'd do best in a low-key adult home. I'm a very good boy who knows how to sit on command, and the staff is pretty sure that I've already been house trained. I get along swell with other dogs, too. As a Super Senior, MY ADOPTION FEE IS ONLY $30. The adoption fee includes my microchip, my neuter, and my current basic shots. That's quite a good deal for a sweet cuddle-bug like me! Won't you please take the time to come visit me at the El Cajon Animal Shelter? Sometimes I just curl up in my bed in my kennel, so please ask the nice shelter staff to let us spend some time getting to know each other out in the nice play yard. I sure hope to see you soon! Love, Louie" Kennel #56
