June 5 - 7: Air Group One, the San Diego wing of the Commemorative Air Force will present their annual Wings Over Gillespie Air Show at Gillespie Field in El Cajon. The Commemorative Air Force has the largest airworthy collection of former military aircraft in the world. It has over 150 flyable combat aircraft, making it the world's seventh largest air force! The CAF's members number over 10,000 worldwide, composing 80 wings in 30 states and 4 countries. The CAF's purpose is to acquire, maintain and operate vintage military aircraft, ground vehicles and associated artifacts for the education and enjoyment of present and future generations.

Friday, June 5 will be a day for students and children from across San Diego county to come and learn about aviation and aviation history. Experts will be on hand to talk to students about the aircraft on static display, and the roles they played. (The actual flying part of the airshow will occur on Saturday, May 6 and Sunday the 7.)

The air show runs Saturday June 6th through Sunday, June 7. The gates are open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Admission, $12 for adults (12+); kids 6-11 and military with I.D. $6; under 6 are free.

cities along the Westward Trek.

If anyone has artwork or handicrafts that reflect the era of Westward expansion and settlement, or have products to sell or exhibits that depict the lives and experiences of the people who took part, or would like to help educate children and adults about that period in American history, we welcome applications. We'll have space for a variety of booths and exhibits, products and programs, sights and sounds.

June 21 - June 7, 2209: "Tinkering" will open at the Reuben H. Fleet with more than 20 hands-on exhibits that bring out the "inner inventor" with pulleys, computer circuits, turntables, paper airplanes, bicycle wheels, wind tunnels, video and animation systems, and much more. Plus, a large workshop-style "Tinkering Studio" lets kids transform everyday household items into catapults, robots, spectrometers and more.

"Tinkering" is inside the Fleet's Main Exhibit Gallery. Ticket prices are Adult: $8; Seniors and Children (age 3-12): $6.75. The exhibit opens Saturday June 21, and will be open daily through June 7, 2009. For more information visit www.rhffleet.org

On opening day (June 21) between 11 a.m. and 4 p.m., visitors can save on admission and help the "Tinkering Studio" get off to a creative start by recycling household items such as corks, plastic film canisters, old CDs or DVDs, cardboard egg cartons, cardboard boxes, or empty pools. Bring in just one of these items and receive $1 off admission. (limit one item/discount per person). Guests who bring in 10 items or more will be entered into a drawing to win a gift certificate to the North Star Science Store!

Other exhibits on display include: "Strange Matter" which gives visitors the chance to dig into the science behind the materials they use every day; So WATT! An Illuminating Look at Energy" which explores some of the ways we generate electricity; "Origins in Space" features the latest images from the Hubble Space Telescope downloaded daily via the internet from NASA and presented on a large plasma screen; "Kid's City" explores everything from conveyor belts and cranes to air chutes and grocery stores, young visitors, infants through age five, will work, create, play, and learn as they experience the wonders of the every day working world within this exhibit.

Blues-rock singer Joe Cocker has been a favorite of music fans far longer than most artists working today. He performs in San Diego this Saturday, June 6, at Humphrey's Concerts By The Bay with special guest LeRoy Bell.

Cocker kicked off his most recent tour on April 17 at St. Augustine Amphitheatre in St. Augustine, FL. With more than 40 concerts planned for the coast-to-coast circuit, the singer is geared up to meet old and new friends.

The English singer rose to fame in the late 1960s and early '70s with his cover versions of The Beatles' "With A Little Help From My Friends," Traffic's "Feelin' Alright" and Billy Preston's "You Are So Beautiful." Over the years, Cocker has released nearly two dozen albums and remains one of today's biggest music legends.

Cocker continues to celebrate his studio album "Hymn for My Soul" on the tour. After the record's May 2008 release, he launched a four-month tour across the U.S. and Canada.

'Up' — Touching, beautiful, memorable

Review by Diana Saenger

While Pixar's new movie Up seems loaded with inventive characters who appeal more to adults than children, it also has a sweet, but poignant plot, one hardly noticeable until the heart feels a jolt and a tear or two gathers along the way.

The story begins with youngster Carl Fredricksen (voiced by Jeremy Leary) watching a Fox Movietone newsreel at the theater. The escapes of adventurer Charles Muntz (voiced by Christopher Plummer), steal his heart, and he too wants to be an adventurer and travel to far-away places.

Shortly afterwards Carl meets Ellie (voiced by Elie Docter), a springy, fish-out-of-water young girl who steals his heart at the word hello and leaves him speechless as she pantomimes her zeal for life. In a short photo montage, their life whizzes by and reveals their marriage, a hope but then loss of a child, Carl's job as a balloon salesman, and their dream to travel to their ideal place, Paradise Falls. But ultimately Carl ends up facing the latter part of his life without Ellie.

If that isn't heart-breaking enough, Carl's treasured home — which he and Ellie built together — is now surrounded by high rises. Greedy developers eagerly wait for Carl (now voiced by Ed Asner) to make one false move so they can snatch up his property.

are Monsters, Inc. (2001), Finding Nemo (2003), The Incredibles (2004), Ratatouille (2007) and WALL-E (2008).

When that happens, Carl uses what's left of his imaginative brain, and ties hundreds of balloons to his house to lift it up, up and away. His yellow-brick-road-move could have been his dream of sailing off into the sunset except for one hitch — the young wilderness explorer, Russell.

At midpoint however, Up almost seems like two different films. The first part of the movie offers few laughs. It's somber and covers many of life's mature elements. The young boy behind me, about 8 years old, rarely laughed during the first hour and instead kept raising questions about what was going on and why the characters were doing certain things.

Russell (voiced by Jordan Nagai) arrives at Carl's home on a mission. He's hoping to do something nice for Carl so he can get the "assistance to the elderly" merit badge, the last one he needs to complete his badges. Instead Russell ends up on the porch as the house lifts off, and finally the movie sails into happier territory.

The second half evokes many laughs but still includes some edgy material such as the vicious dogs. Parents will probably notice that this film, unlike most Disney films, is rated PG for peril and action instead of G. Youngsters might also be disappointed that the 3-D version lacks those fun things shooting out from the screen as seen in the trailer for G-Force.

The jovial Russell is on-board for a trip with the Walter Matthau-like Carl, and what an adventure they have in South America where they discover dogs that talk, befriend a dog named Dug and a beautiful bird given the name Kevin by Russell. They also encounter Charles Muntz, the adventurer Carl has longed to meet. Surprisingly, Muntz turns out to be anything but what he expected.

Up's directors Pete Docter (Monsters, Inc.) and Bob Peterson (Ratatouille) still deliver magic on the screen. The story is one mature audiences will understand all too well, and yes I can verify men do cry. Up reminds us how important it is to chase our dreams. The characters — certainly not Hollywood types — are all adorable. The beautiful animation is typical of Pixar, and alleviated by Michael Giacchino's magnificent music; transports us to a far away make-believe place in the blink of an eye.

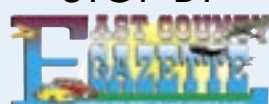

Pixar has become one of the most reliable companies bringing entertainment to the big screen. Among Pixar's popular previous films

Outrageous old school comedy unfolds in 'The Hangover'

Review by Diana Saenger

Who hasn't had a moment, a day or a night they will never forget? In The Hangover, four friends who are about to have a bachelor party in Las Vegas experience such a night, and it's one that changes their lives forever. Although I usually run as fast as I can from comedies like this, I'm pleased to say The Hangover ends up being one of the funniest movies I've seen in a long time.

Doug (Justin Bartha) is about to say I do. So his best buddies, Phil (Bradley Cooper) and Stu (Ed Helms), want to make sure he has the night of his life before walking down the aisle. They didn't invite his future brother-in-law Alan (Zach Galifianakis), but the guy worms his way in and persuades his father to loan them his treasured Mercedes convertible.

What starts out as innocent fun and frivolity goes appallingly wrong -- even by Las Vegas standards. It begins when Alan takes them to Caesars' rooftop for an incredible view of city lights and a toast. Then they hit the casino where Alan plans to practice the card-counting method he read about on the way over. What happens next is only surmised, for the next scene takes place the morning after in the $4,000 luxurious suite Stu reluctantly put on his credit card.

Ed's missing tooth, the growling tiger in the bathroom, the whimpering baby found in a closet and the pant-less Alan don't seem important after the men discover the groom isn't with them. It's now only hours until Doug must be at the altar, so the three groomsmen try to backtrack their night of bad-boy behavior. Phil believes the hospital band on his arm is the starting path. Soon we see the friends in Buster Keaton-type escapades which show them running from Asian gamblers, having an unpleasant encounter with Mike Tyson, stealing a cop car and almost getting killed in the desert. Fortunately, one laugh after another ensues.

Although I didn't care for director Todd Phillips' Old School, The Hangover is off-the-charts clever and funny. Each character has an arc that takes him from responsible to outrageously reckless, and we can't help laughing at every turn of each one's next high-jinx.

Because he's absent in most of the film, Bartha (Failure to Launch) doesn't have much screen time, but Doug is loyal to his pals throughout the ordeal, and Bartha appears sincere in his portrayal. As the only married man among the group, Phil steps in as the natural leader to keep his buds out of trouble. Cooper sets the tone as the defenseless protector by displaying the innate sense of humor he exhibited in Yes Man, The Rocker and the TV show Nip Tuck.

Alan is everything a Jack Black character would be, and Galifianakis (What Happens in Vegas, Reno 911!) handles every action impressively. His naive attitude at Alan's oddness and ability to make every action appear so haphazard is exceptional. Helms (Night at the Museum: Battle of the Smithsonian, Meet Dave) probably delivers the most remarkable performance as Ed, a serious man, engaged to a fiercely controlling woman who wants every accounting of every dollar he spends.

Although The Hangover is definitely "R" rated, screenwriters Jon Lucas and John Moore, both who penned Ghosts of Girlfriends Past and Four Christmases, have upped the level of bad-behavior comedies with their great script. Interspersed among the typical antics is a mystery of what happened to the groom, and every layer uncovered seems funnier than the last.

The juxtaposition of the characters is ingenious. Phil, the weary teacher, participates in everything he hopes he doesn't represent. Ed, the trustworthy dentist, not only loses his tooth, but his trustworthiness. Alan, a man who only wants to be in the "in crowd," creates his own far-fetched world. All of this unfolds with complete believability, which with these scenarios, is nothing short of amazing.

The Hangover does have some very raunchy scenes, and a lot of the funny scenes are unveiled in the trailers, but anyone with an open mind who wants some good laughs will find them here.

Video shelves spill over with new DVD arrivals

By Diana Saenger

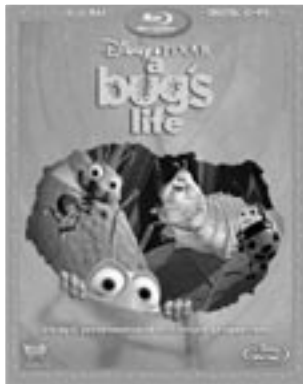

The summer blockbusters just keep coming – bad for all of those shelves – good for movie fans. Home viewers have great options whether buying or renting DVDs, special editions or those amazing Blu-Ray editions. Here are just a few of the offerings that are now available.

'Defiance'

One of my favorite films of last year has finally arrived on DVD and Blu-Ray. Based on the extraordinary true story, the action-packed, epic tale Defiance arrives on DVD and Blu-ray June 2, 2009. The film is directed by Academy Award-winner Edward Zwick and stars Daniel Craig, Liev Schreiber and Jamie Bell as brothers who escape into the forest of Belarus where they hide as well as seek revenge on the German officers who killed their parents. As word of the resisters holed up in the forest spreads, the brothers are joined by more and more Jews who escape death as the Nazis continue on their killing escape. Defiance is loaded with great bonus features including a director's commentary and interviews with the real-life descendants of the Bielski family. Rated "R" – Paramount Home Entertainment.

'A Bug's Life'

A Disney/Pixar favorite is now available on Blu-ray and what a splash it makes. Crawling with imaginative characters, hilarious laughs and colorful animation, A Bug's Life is the hilarious and visually breathtaking film that reminds us heroes come in small shapes and sizes! Now everyone can experience a bug's eye view of the world in spectacular high definition picture and sound. The Blu-ray set includes a special introduction from director John Lasseter (Cars, Toy Story), plus exciting new bonus material designed exclusively for the Blu-ray release. Rated "G" – Walt Disney Studios Home Entertainment.

'Revolutionary Road'

Nominated for three Academy Awards, the emotionally gripping film Revolutionary Road arrives on DVD and Blu-ray June 2, 2009. Starring Leonardo DiCaprio and Kate Winslet as partners in a 1950s troubled marriage, the actors provide moving and thought-provoking revelations. Bonus features on the releases include commentary by director Sam Mendes and screenwriter Justin Haythe and a making-of featurette. Rated "R" – Paramount Home Entertainment.

'The Siege'

When a crowded city blows up in Brooklyn and a campaign of terror begins to make its bloody mark on the streets of New York, two men must find out who's responsible and put an end to the destruction. Together, they face explosive danger at every turn when they team up to wage an all-out war against a ruthless band of terrorists. The new Blu-Ray DVD stars Denzel Washington and Bruce Willis. Rated "R" – MGM Home Entertainment.

'Reba: The Complete Sixth Season'

Everyone's favorite all-American dysfunctional family returns as "Reba" The Complete Sixth Season debuts on DVD June 23. Grammy-winner Reba McEntire stars as the wisecracking suburban single mother trying to hold the Hart family together; juggling her career, family and relationships while wearing multiple hats and proving that she really is a survivor in the hilariously heartfelt show's final season. Rated "R" – 20th Century Fox Home Entertainment.

'Enchanted April'

In a temporary escape from their drab lives and inattentive husbands, Lottie Wilkins (Josie Lawrence) and Rose Arbuthnot (Miranda Richardson) rent a magnificent villa on the Italian Riviera. To be able to afford a month of this luxury, they must share expenses with two unlikely companions – Mrs. Fisher (Joan Plowright), a crusty widow living in the past and Caroline Dester (Polly Walker), a charming, but bored aristocrat. The mismatched housemates find that the villa and lush Italian setting hold a special magic that soon sparks friendships and reminds the women of ways to live and love that have long eluded them. Great extras on the DVD. Rated "PG" – Walt Disney Studios Home Entertainment.

'Land of the Lost: The Complete Series'

On a routine expedition, Ranger Rick Marshall and his kids Will and Holly met the greatest earthquake ever known. High on the rapids, it struck their raft and plunged them down a thousand feet below to the "Land of the Lost." Take a journey back in time with the Marshall family through this incredible world of breathtaking wonder. Only in the Land of the Lost will you battle dinosaurs one day and encounter beings from other dimensions the next. The Pylons, the Pakuni, evil energy storms...all are part of this awesome television adventure with all 43 action-packed original episodes of Land of the Lost: The Complete Series. The bonus features on the DVD are almost as excited as the series. Not Rated – Universal Studios Home Entertainment.

Dear Dr. Luauna Stines

Dear Dr. Luauna,

I am a single mother, and my thirteen year old son has been acting up, he told me to leave him alone and do not tell him what to do! I have had it with him, I do not know what to do? HELP! I am frustrated, and at the end. Signed, Frustrated in San Diego.

Answer: Dear Frustrated,

Teens are special little people. I must say it's not easy to be a teen, let alone being a parent during those years. Raising a teen, you are going to need lots of love, grace, and a whole lot of mercy! Every time we turn around the media, music, and so much more are working overtime to try to influence your teen for evil, this world's system is trying to shape our children. Those years, when they think they are an adult, and yet at times you see that little baby inside, looking at you for approval. Just remember, the teen years are the most insecure years of your child's development, they are looking for an identity and trying hard to find who they are.

A few suggestions: 1. Find out who your child is hanging around with because bad company corrupts good morals. 2. If they are hanging around with bad company, remove them from that environment; don't wait until they are 16 or 17, because you will lose them. 3. Spend more time with your teen, bond with your teen. If you work and are never home, change your schedule, you only have one shot. You are not going to get another chance to do it over again, you want to do it right the first time. 4. Speak life over your child, tell them they are going to do great things and tell them you believe in them. 5. The most important thing is find a really good church that has a great youth group and good preaching.

Raising a child correctly starts when they are little and if you have neglected your responsibility then you must repent and ask God to help you restore the broken pieces; nothing is too hard for the Lord! His plans for you are good. (Read these scriptures: 1 Corinthians 15:33, Proverbs 22:6, Proverbs 19:8, Proverbs 19:18, and Proverbs 23:13-14)

CROSSWORD SOLUTION

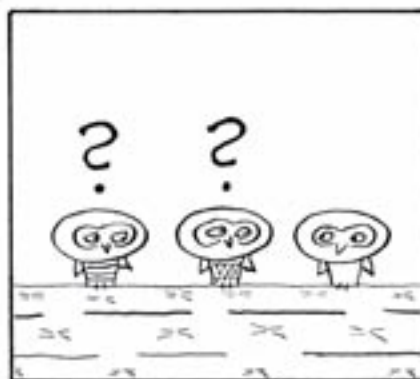

Oh rats!

My son... thou shall not speed on California highways. Now repent and go forth.

Who are you?

I am Father Alvin... the CHIP monk.
